Food Chain Signs Shopping Center Lease

Sikeston is to be the site of a three-quarter million dollar Safeway Food Store, it was learned today.

Safeway Stores, Inc., signed a lease with George Staples, developer of the Kingsway Plaza Shopping Center, for 21,000 square feet.

The store, one of a chain across the nation, will employ 28 persons and will be built to the latest standards.

As explained by Horace Justice, division manager of Safeway Stores, construction is waiting for the rest of the leases to be signed. George Staples of Charleston is the leasing agent for the shopping center.

The center is to be located on South Kingshighway at Murray Lane. It is designed by A.F. and Arthur Stauder Architects of St. Louis.

Staples also announced that several other leases have been signed but the parties involved are not ready to release the information.

"Tenative plans are presently set for construction to begin August 1, providing the different tenants get their plans to the architects," Staples said.

Construction work is to be done by Staples Real Estate and Loan Company, and a general superintendent will be appointed to oversee the construction. No bids will be taken, but sub-contracts will be made for different phases of the job, Staples said.

Three Warrants Issued In Magistrate Session

Three warrants for arrest were ordered today by Judge M. E. Montgomery for failure to appear in this morning's session of Magistrate Court.

Isaac Brown, Benton, is to be brought into court on a charge of not having a driver's license.

Bill Sanders, 1108 Osage, is to be brought before the judge on a charge of not having a driver's license.

Flora Horton, Charleston, failed to appear in court to answer to a charge of careless and reckless driving while speeding. Consequently, a warrant was issued for her appearance.

Bobby and Jimmie Smith of Paris, Tex., charged with having trucks improperly registered, were fined $25 and costs each.

Roy Jones, 1102 Osage, was sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $5 and costs for not having a driver's license. However, the Judge waived both sentences for two weeks for Jones to obtain a license.

Willie Sims, Benton, charged with having a vehicle improperly registered and carrying a concealed weapon, was fined $5 and costs on the non-registration charge. The concealed weapon charge was continued to next week.

Domingo Gunfire Kills Two

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) -- A sharp exchange of gunfire between U. S. paratroopers and rebel forces today killed two civilians and wounded seven.

It was not immediately clear what touched off the shooting. Several homes and a business house on the rebel side were set afire.

At least two rounds of 106mm recoilless rifle fire smashed into a burning building where Dominican firemen were trying to put out the flames.

The dead were a 13-year-old boy and a 2-year-old child.

Rebel sharpshooters were firing back at the paratroopers, whose lines were on a slight rise looking down into the rebel held zone of downtown Santo Domingo.

No Injuries In Minor Collision

A minor accident in front of the Houchins Donut Shop at eight a.m. today involved a garbage truck driven by Ronnie Collier, 301 Selma, and a Harts Bread truck driven by Harvey Spencer, Canalou.

Both were headed west when the Collier truck struck the bread truck in the rear, according to Sikeston police.

Minor damage and no injuries.

Five Injured In Accidents

All of the five injuries in the Troop E area Monday occurred in three of the six highway accidents, two of which were north of Benton, two near Poplar Bluff, and the fifth near Hayti.

In a one car accident at 1:05 p.m. Monday, two miles north of Poplar Bluff, Mrs. Helen Burnett, 37, Parma, Ohio, lost control of her 1965 Chevrolet, received injuries to her mouth, chin and legs, and her husband, Benjamin Burnett, 40, received abrasions on his head and arms. Both were taken to a hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Mrs. Carolyn Scivily, 61, driving a 1965 Mercury, and her husband Andrew Scivily, 62, both of Florissant, were injured in an accident Monday at 9:10 a.m. on Highway 61, four miles north of Benton. She was attempting to pass a car when a second car pulled in front of her, causing the car to leave the highway and into a creekbed. She received fractured ribs, and a possible back injury, while her husband received fractures to the right leg, jaw and possible internal injuries. They were taken to a Cape Girardeau hospital.

Dennis Loyd, 16, Hayti, was injured while riding a bicycle Monday at 12:05 p.m. on Highway 61, four miles north of Hayti, and taken to the Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital. He was struck by a 1960 Angela driven by John Wilson, 58, Hayti.

Russia Unveils Big One

PARIS (AP) — The Soviet Union unveiled today a mammoth transport plane which it said could carry 720 passengers or a payload of 80 tons.

The huge plane, more than five stories tall, landed at Le Bourget Airport for the International Air Show after a nonstop five-hour flight from Moscow.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said the plane had a maximum speed of 465 miles an hour and could fly 6,600 miles nonstop with a load of 45 tons.

Tass said it had been named the Antaeus, after a giant in Greek mythology.

The Antaeus is powered by four 15,000-horsepower double-propeller turboprop engines mounted on a wing welded into the top of the craft's cabin.

Although the Antaeus is, according to aircraft manufacturing representatives at the air show, the largest plane now in the air, the U.S. Air Force is planning a jet transport which may be even larger.

Douglas, Lockheed and Boeing Aircraft corporations are competing for the contract to build a triple-deck jet transport for the Air Force to be flown for the first time in 1968. Preliminary plans call for a seating capacity of 500-700.

3. The City Bond Issue

Increased Water Demands Necessitate Larger Supply

Editor's Note: This is the third of a series of articles prepared by the board of public works to explain its plan to improve the city's water and sewage system. Voters will be asked to approve the proposal in a bond election.

Increased industrial, commercial, and residential demands on Sikeston's water supply system make it necessary that the municipal water plant be expanded in capacity and that new facilities for water storage be constructed.

These community needs have been provided for in the board of public works plan to improve the city's water and sewer systems. Nineteen per cent or $229,000 of this $1,200,000 proposal has been allotted for the purpose of giving Sikeston a larger supply of better quality water.

Plans call for a new well more than 300 feet deep to be constructed to increase the raw water supply for the city's water plant, which will expand the capacity of the plant and, at the same time, improve the quality of the water produced. The settling basin will help reduce the amount of iron deposits present in the water.

Also improving the quality of the water will be a new chemical treatment designed to eliminate a red discoloration sometimes affecting the city's water.

Besides these measures, a new water storage tank will be constructed on the eastern edge of the city. This new tank will be at ground level and will have a capacity of 1,000,000 gallons.

Storage capacity of the present system is dangerously deficient from the standpoint of emergency water supply, which would be needed in case of a major fire in Sikeston. The existing storage facilities are a 300,000 gallon elevated tank and a 400,000 gallon clear-well reservoir.

The new well, the settling basin, and the new storage tank will provide emergency water supply and storage for fire and other eventualities, and will also help to maintain higher and steadier water pressures throughout the entire system than is now available.

All these improvements are needed, since the present water plant was designed 15 years ago with a capacity of 3.1 million gallons per day. The population of Sikeston today is 29 per cent greater than in 1950, and the water plant is approaching capacity operation. One day in the summer of 1964, the city used 2.8 million gallons of water.

Approval of these proposed improvements should eliminate the community's serious water problems, and allow the municipal water works to expand and meet the demands of a growing community.

9-Year-Old Publisher Long On News, Short on Spelling

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) -- The spelling is bad, but the news is told and the paper sells. This is the story of 9-year-old Philip Lee's newsletter, which he publishes in suburban College Park when the mood strikes him.

His brother Eric, 6, is circulation manager. Philip reported in the newsletter that Eric enters the first grade in September and adds: "He is pretty smart. The Editor has taute him all he knows."

Philip's mother, Mrs. George Lee, cuts his stencils for him, retaining his original spelling, and St. Mary's Episcopal Church provides a mimeograph machine. Philip's topics cover a wide range, from the neighborhood to Viet Nam.

For a nickel, you can read these items from Philip's latest edition:

"Sister Annunciata, a nun is sick and tird at St. Josephs Hosbital. She had an oporration for very close veins. She is tird because she has been on her feet for 50 yrs. God bless her."

"Mrs. Grace Olds broke her foot and she is very unhappy about it."

Reporting the upcoming marriage of Miss Laura Slade and Lt. Richard B. Skelton, Philip writes: "Everybody will be dressed up fine specily her grandmother Mrs. A. L. Slade who says she will look finer than anyone cept the bride. They will get married. And will live happily ever after."

Noting that Glenda Kimsey "studies underwater caves and climes montans," Philip concludes: "She is brave for a girl."

In an editorial on Viet Nam, Philip supports the U. S. position there, reasoning, "If some boys were picking on my brother Eric, I would help him."

Philip's venture into the publishing field began last March when he needed money to buy his brother a birthday present. Since then he's put out four editions -- and sold 110 copies of the last one.

"Philip's editorials," his mother says, "generally are on

State Senate Sends Arts Council Bill to House

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Senate Tuesday wound up debate on the controversial state arts council bill, passed it and sent it back to the House with minor changes.

One of the few new programs recommended by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, it would provide $250,000 to foster cultural activities throughout the state.

Opponents argued at length the money was needed elsewhere and that patronizing the arts is not the proper role for state governments. They tried several amendments to kill the bill, but failed.

One amendment which did succeed cut the membership of the council from 25 to 10 members. The council would decide how the funds are to be spent.

Presumably the money would be used to finance tours by symphony orchestras in St. Louis and Kansas City, traveling art exhibits and perhaps road shows by dramatic groups or ballet companies.

Four important bills were passed and sent to the governor.

The House passed, 119-16, a stiff fair employment practices bill. It forbids employers of more than 25 workers and all labor unions from denying employment or membership because of race, creed, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

Sponsors said it brings Missouri into line with federal anti-discrimination laws. The state law would be enforced by the Human Rights Commission.

The Senate passed another bill said to be in line with federal legislation. It would rule out experience as a substitute for educational qualifications in merit system jobs.

Without it, sponsors said, the federal government could withhold matching funds for some programs. Hardest hit would be the welfare programs where many case workers are long on experience, but lack degrees in social work.

Another would authorize Jackson County to lease property up to 50 years. It would pave the way for leasing facilities at the $40 million sports complex planned for Kansas City.

Changes in the state's new uniform commercial code were passed after differences between the House and Senate were ironed out in conference.

The House killed a bill to let cities levy a license tax on most vocations or businesses.

The Senate sent back to the House two bills with minor changes.

One would raise the weekly benefits under workmen's compensation laws from $42.50 to $47 for persons injured in industrial accidents.

Another would stop the salary

Water Works at Bertrand

BERTRAND — The city of Bertrand accepted a four-part bid this morning on the construction of a waterworks system at a total cost of $125,000. The final approval will be given in a meeting on July 1 after the full government loan has been approved and then work order will be issued.

The four units, awarded separately, included the well and pump to the Lane Art Company, Stuttgart, Ark.; the elevated 50,000 gallon storage tank to the Pittsburgh Des Moines Co., Des Moines, Ia.; the well house and treatment plant to the Tarthenon Company, Sikeston; and the distribution system to H. E. Blinne, Poplar Bluff.

There were two bids on the well, three bids on the storage tank, and the balance numbering seven, on all four units. All bids were close and ranged from the low bid up to $135,000, according to Mayor L. J. Schwab.

Present at today's bid awarding were, Harry Littleton, Federal Home Administrator, Sikeston; Alex C. Waters, consulting engineer, Sikeston; Rod Ashby, attorney, Charleston; Mayor Schwab and Harvey Jobe, alderman.

Sour Grapes! Gets $698 From Picker

ST. LOUIS AP -- Sherman J. Fulkerson, 61, en route to his Kennett home, was robbed Monday night of $698 he had earned picking grapes in California.

Fulkerson told police he met a man at the Greyhound bus depot in St. Louis and walked with him to a nearby fruit stand. The man then grabbed a roll of bills Fulkerson had pulled from his pocket to pay for the fruit, and fled.

U. S. Combat Units Having To Be Used

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP -- The battle of Dong Xoai has brought the Vietnamese war to a threshold that many Vietnamese commanders are not anmious to cross-the first use of American combat units in battle.

It seems inevitable that U.S. units will soon be out on their own in full-fledged warfare with the guerrilla enemy. They were on the verge of that at Dong Xoai, and part of the U. S. Army's 173rd Airborne Brigade moved to within 20 miles of the fight.

They did not go in because Vietnamese generals did not want them. The brake was applied by Brig. Gen. Cao Van Vien, commander of the Vietnamese army's 3rd Corps, who was responsible for the operation.

"I think the Viet Cong is deliberately trying to draw American units into this fight," Vien said.

A number of top American officials agreed. It looked as if a primary objective of the Communists at Dong Xoai was to force commitment of the U.S. paratroopers to battle and perhaps to inflict enough casualties to make the Americans look bad.

The American commanders seemed ready to take the risk. They were armed with prior approval from Washington. The Vietnamese felt the gamble was not worth making, that it was better to commit their own reserves. Two battalions of Vietnamese troops were virtually wiped out at Dong Xoai.

At the root of Vietnamese reluctance to see the Americans move into the war more actively is an old bugbear of Vietnamese - American relations - national sovereignty.

Cape Girl Still Missing

No trace has been found of Betsy Gill, two-year-old Cape Girardeau girl who has been missing since Sunday when she reportedly walked away from her home about four p.m.

She is one of 10 children of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gill and had been playing with neighborhood children before vanishing.

A large number of volunteers, estimated at 100, have been searching for the infant.

Authorities fear the child wandered to the Mississippi River and fell in. The family residence is two blocks away from the river.

The U. S. Army Corps of Engineers provided a boat to search the river, which has been scoured from a mile north of the Cape bridge to more than a half mile south.

The possibility of her being picked up by a motorist has not been discounted by officers.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation has been notified, but is not on the case.

Five Arrested

Curtis Byrd, Rt. 4, Sikeston, was charged with assault.

Barbara Jacobs, New Madrid, was charged with failing to yield the right of way to another vehicle.

Earl Nave, Neelyville, was charged with driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

Paul Glancy, Sikeston, was charged with public intoxication.

FIVE REPORTED ILL

It was reported today that five or more persons became ill and were taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital for treatment, presumably after they had eaten cream pie on Sunday. Among those reported ill were, Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Webb, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Malone, and Lynn Smith, the latter from Kennett.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Tuesday, June 15 Lloyd R. Waste invents paper bearing his name.

* * *

One of the ways to stay happier is to avoid an around-the-world trip.

The poverty one sees in India and other undeveloped countries defies accurate description. The squalor in which many poor people live in foreign countries is almost unbelievable. Ignorance is universal and sanitation is not existent. Superstition rules the lives of millions of miserable people.

What then is the world's greatest problem? There are so many problems that this thought is almost overwhelming in its implications.

A scholar, who has been a missionary to China, a preacher, a teacher and a civic leader in this country, described population as the greatest problem. Accurately it should be called overpopulation. The teeming masses of Asia made a profound impression on this wise and intelligent man.

Another great humanitarian, Dr. Albert Sabin, who developed the oral polio vaccine, says that the world's greatest menace is misery and poverty. While menace and problem are different words, misery and poverty certainly are both.

Dr. Salk's observation required a certain amount of detachment because his efforts now are devoted to cancer research. Cancer as one of the principal killers of humans also is entitled to high ranking as a problem even though Dr. Salk rates misery and poverty as bigger menaces.

He called in a Cincinnati speech for a global war on poverty.

"The countries of the East and West should cease fighting among themselves and join in a program to eliminate poverty and illiteracy," he said.

This brings up another world problem -- war. Through the ages it has been a major problem to humanity.

There is an inter-relationship between all the world's major problems -- certainly of all of those mentioned here.

How will they be solved.

Through education, of course, and not through formal education alone. Formal education helps but real education continues after school days are over.

Education can help produce more intelligent solutions but it alone is not enough.

The educated man must not only give his best thought to solving the problems but his reaction must be active and not passive. He must be willing to work to achieve the solutions that he has in mind.

The answer is think, work, act. No problem anywhere is ever solved except with these ingredients.

* * *

To our way of thinking the fellow who invented the little paperbound books deserves a place in history right alongside Thomas Alva Edison, who invented the light bulb; Alexander Graham Bell, who discovered the telephone, and the fellows who invented compound interest and discovered night baseball.

The highly disposable paperbacks have revolutionized reading habits and freed thousands of square feet in homes for such higher priority activities as cocktail parties and family fights.

The savings to home owners in space, once consumed by library shelves and heavy cloth and leather bound volumes, can only be reckoned in millions of dollars. A fortune also is being saved in maintenance and dusting the homes through the years and of hauling the books to the city dump when the old man died.

Nobody has ever been discovered who wanted all the books, which once cluttered up houses, except other libraries, which by accepting them only perpetuated the problem of keeping and maintaining them. Nobody wants to read them.

The paperbound books often are cloaked in a sexy cover, which in no way is descriptive of the drab contents inside. This encourages reading, which is not a bad thing.

The interest in literature and how to do a million and one things has been greatly stimulated by these little volumes, which are priced within the reach of everyone.

When a fellow gets through reading a paperbound book he leaves it on a bus or plane seat or in some other public place or just chucks it. They are light in weight, easy to carry in the hand, purse or pocket.

One thing is missing. Modern readers don't look as intelligent as they once did. Although reading has been made more convenient and less expensive it is no longer possible to pose for pictures in front of the library.

Guests aren't given the opportunity to gauge the intelligence of their hosts by counting the books and reading their titles, on the home library shelves standing row on row.

There was a time when erudition could be judged by the number of books on the shelves. Now all appraisals of educational and literary attainment must be made on the basis on how big a bonfire can be built in the back yard.

This gives substance to the old saying that where there is smoke there is bound to be fire.

Anyway books are like money. In the end you can't take 'em with you.

OUR NEGLECTED OLDSTERS

In a youth-oriented society, the problems of the elderly can too easily be put aside. That the aged do have troubles can be seen in government statistics which show that six million Americans over age 65 have incomes of less than $2,000 a year. Hearings on poverty among the elderly open on Wednesday, June 16, before the Senate Special Committee on Aging.

Chairman George A. Smathers (D Fla.) has said that despite efforts to date, "retirement for too many Americans is a one-way ticket to hopelessness." He is concerned because federal War on Poverty programs seem to be aimed at helping young people and give insufficient attention to those in voluntary or enforced retirement. He believes a special Job Corps program for retraining elderly men and women would yield big benefits for the nation.

Congress already is in the final stages of action on an administration - backed bill, the Older Americans Act of 1965, to create an "Administration on Aging" in the Health, Education and Welfare Department. The legislation would authorize $17.5 million over the next two years for grants to states and to public and private non-profit organizations to develop programs for the welfare of the aged. There is a certain sense of urgency behind this; 18 million Americans now are over age 65 and their numbers are increasing at the rate of 1,000 a day.

BOYCOTTING MEDICARE

The American Medical Association has bought 30 minutes of prime evening time on the ABC-TV network for Thursday (June 17) to argue against medicare. Beginning Sunday (June 20), about 25,000 physicians are expected at the four-day annual meeting of the A.M.A. in New York City.

THIS MAY BE the last convention of the American Medical Association at which the principle of medicare is the burning issue. So doctors can be excused for making the most of their terminal opportunity. As part of the final agony, efforts will be made to get approval for a nationwide physician boycott of the imminent program of medical insurance for the aged under social security.

So far, five of the 50 state medical associations have adopted resolutions urging physicians and surgeons not to participate in the medicare program when it finally becomes law. The five are the associations of Arizona, Florida, Louisiana, Ohio and Texas. Representatives from these states will be carrying their torch into the A.M.A.'s House of Delegates.

IT IS FAR from certain, however, that the 250-member policy making body will advise physicians to follow the well-trod path of non-violent non-cooperation. A.M.A. President Dr. Donovan Ward has urged state and local medical groups to defer any boycott resolutions until medicare actually becomes law. Significantly, the U.S. Senate won't take up the House-passed measure until July -- well after the A.M.A.'s annual meeting.

The New England Journal of Medicine cautions physicians against a no-surrender policy. It compares a medicare boycott to "demanding that the crew of a vessel go down with its ship." The A.M.A's "stubborn rear-guard action" in opposition to medicare, the journal declared, may actually be helping the legislation toward enactment.

Questions always arise as to whether any trade or professional association can assume to speak for the majority. Dr. Ivan L. Bennett, Jr., chief pathologist of the Johns Hopkins Medical School and Hospital, states that individual doctors "stay away from their societies' meetings in droves." This leaves matters to leaders who Bennett charges "have shown through the years an abiding faith in the belief that what is good for the doctor -- financially -- is good for the country."

BUT A SURVEY of scores of physicians from coast to coast by the Wall Street Journal disclosed that roughly 25 per cent intend to stay out of the medicare program. A few physicians even said they would not accept new patients coming to them under the program.

The most obvious form of non-cooperation would be refusal to fill out medical claims forms. A patient would then have to pay his bill out of his own pocket and file a claim for reimbursement with the medicare insurer. Administrative chaos still could result if the doctor refused to provide the patient with a statement as to the precise nature of the services rendered.

Non-participation by doctors is entirely legal under the medicare bill as now written. Nor can non-participation be assailed ethically under A.M.A. codes. They give the physician the right to "choose whom he will serve."

Many observers believe the boycott agitation is nothing more than a temporary means of release for emotions stirred by fears of socialized medicine. Some physicians once vowed to refuse participation in Blue Cross plans, when private health insurance was an innovation.

St. Louis Globe Democrat

THE MOST PRECIOUS RIGHT

Civil rights is an overriding issue in America.

The right to the vote, to education, to equal accommodations is demanded not only by minorities, but by a sympathetic federal government.

At the same time, there is a cruel irony in this land of freedom. The United States is one of the few nations in the world with compulsory unionism -- where a man has to join a union to keep his job.

True, the right to work without joining a union still exists in 19 states. But it is under severe attack. The Johnson Administration wants to repeal the section of federal law which permits the states to preserve this freedom.

The right to vote or be admitted to the fanciest restaurant in town is little consolation to the worker of any race if he has no job. Other rights won't feed or clothe or house his wife and family if he has lost his most precious right -- the right to work. -- Nation's Business.

The Missouri State Highway Patrol investigated 25,998 rural traffic accidents last year. Some of the people involved in these accidents were under the impression that the trooper's accident report was all that was required. This was not true in many cases.

The Safety Responsibility Law of Missouri requires the operator or owner of every vehicle involved in an accident to file a written report within ten days to the Department of Revenue when the accident results in death or injury or when damage to property of any one person exceeds $100. This applies to every operator involved in an accident, regardless of who is to blame. If there is any doubt as to the amount of property damage, it is best to send in a report. Failure to comply with this law is punishable by suspension of one's driving license and fine up to $500.

Under the Safety Responsibility Law both the operator's and owner's driving license and registration certificate, as well as their automobile license plates, can be suspended. Withing 45 days after receiving a report of an accident, the Department of Revenue must enforce suspension unless it has received satisfactory evidence that the operator, or the owner has met his financial responsibility.

Colonel Hugh H. Waggoner, the Superintendent of the Missouri Highway Patrol, said: "The Safety Responsibility Law was enacted to protect everyone in Missouri against financially irresponsible owners and operators of motor vehicles who become involved in accidents. It also promotes street and highway safety by allowing the State to remove drivers from behind the wheel who habitually cause accidents."

The official forms required to be submitted under the Safety Responsibility Law may be obtained from any branch office of the Department of Revenue, from any Motor Vehicle Registration office, from members of the State Highway Patrol, and from other law enforcement officials. The reports filed with the Department of Revenue are confidential and cannot be used in civil court.

We are living in what, thanks to the absence of a shooting war between any major powers, automatically earns the title of peacetime.

But though the world is in no immediate danger of dying from a nuclear heart attack, it has broken out with a rash of measles, says Harlan Cleveland, assistant secretary of state for international organization affairs.

There are (or were, as of the time he spoke), 49 little wars, guerrilla campaigns and border disputes currently going on around the world.

One reason, he says, is the nuclear stalemate; war between the big powers has become unthinkable. Add to this situation the emergence of scores of new, independent nations in Asia and Africa and the spreading of the idea, which the United States has encouraged, that every country has the right to determine its own destiny.

With the fear of nuclear war inhibiting the big powers from keeping the small ones in line as they once did, the result has been a series of minor disputes.

"It seems," says Cleveland, "that the alternative to a world war is a world full of wars."

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

There have been six governments in the four years since the assassination of Trujillo in May, 1961. The third government was headed by Juan Bosch. A workable anti - Communist government is yet to be established in Santo Domingo.

U. S. aid was not available for the Dominicans until after Trujillo was deposed. In 16 years from 1946 to 1962 the U. S. gave the Trujillo government a token aid totalling 3 million dollars.

After Trujillo was deposed aid jumped to 35 million dollars in 1962. When Bosch came to power early in 1963, aid was boosted to 51.6 million dollars in that year and The Dominican Republic was to be made a showcase for Alliance for Progress. In 1964, after Bosch was deposed, aid was reduced to 13.7 million dollars.

Trujillo was bad because he was a dictator. However, he was friendly to the United States. Without charge he made sites available to the U. S. for air bases and other needed activities. In addition to opposing Communism in Santo Domingo he actively combatted Communist infiltration throughout Latin America.

At the start of the recent riots in Santo Domingo, had there not been well-informed anti-Communists on the scene to sound a warning, and had not our courageous President moved as quickly as he did there would have already been another Cuba and another pro - Communist dictator installed in this hemisphere. We failed to follow the advice of those who sounded the warning and must soon determine who we can safely trust.

There are other places in Latin America where similar explosions may occur. The same day our marines landed in Santo Domingo a revolution had reportedly been scheduled in a Central American republic. President Johnson's quick reaction to the Santo Domingo danger apparently deferred it. HLH

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP) —Weather is one of the most important words in war.

Every American over here talks about the weather — usually in uncomplimentary terms —but Capt. Norman F. Jacobs is one of the few who does anything about it.

He also can explain the vagaries of the two monsoon seasons over here, which have most people baffled.

As commander of Detachment 9 of the 30th Weather Squadron, Jacobs has a vital role.

In war, both ground and air operations are to a great degree dependent on the weather, and it is his onerous task to predict it accurately as far in advance as possible.

In the operations office of the big Da Nang air base, the captain, 32, who comes from Los Angeles, directs 22 American and Vietnamese Air Force helpers. He also works closely with 20 employes of the nearby Vietnamese civilian weather station.

Every morning and evening at 8 o'clock they send up a large transmitter-carrying balloon which rises to a height of 80,000 feet as it sends down data on wind and temperature.

"At those same hours other baloons are sent up at hundreds of weather stations around the globe," said Jacobs.

"Thus we get an instantaneous picture of the atmosphere throughout the world.

"The balloons stay aloft 1½ to 2 hours, then expand and burst. Sometimes one of them will fall into our ammunition area —and then there's a little excitement."

About 150 feet off the runway Jacobs has an air-conditioned, glass-walled observation shack which he describes as one of the most modern installations in Southeast Asia.

"It operates as the weather does — 24 hours a day," he said. "We send out hourly reports regularly, but sometimes as often as every 10 minutes."

Now, about those mysterious monsoons.

Most people think South Viet Nam has two seasons: The dry season, when the country is like an arid desert, and the monsoon season, when the skies open and flood down rain in torrents for six months.

The Viet Cong are supposed to welcome the monsoon season, because the bad weather keeps our fighter planes down and they can attack us with less risk of punishing air strikes.

Well, it isn't quite that simple.

"In a tropical climate such as this we can expect an afternoon rain in any part of the country at any time of the year, including the so-called dry season," explained the meterologist.

"The word monsoon merely means weather caused by winds. There are two monsoons, not one.

"In the summer monsoon the winds blow from the southwest and it rains heavily around Saigon and the delta region.

"But by the time the winds reach Da Nang, several hundred miles to the north, the mountains have wrung out most of their moisture. So it is comparatively dry up here."

"During the winter monsoon the situation is reversed. The winds blow from the northeast and dump heavy rains on Da Nang and smaller amounts of moisture around Saigon.

"But throughout the entire country some rain normally falls in every month of the year."

That means, whenever stormy weather appears, the enemy can plan a surprise attack in any part of South Viet Nam at any season, and they do.

Any questions about monsoons? If so, please address them to Capt. Jacobs.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — When the Gemini astronauts were transferred all the way from the Florida coast where the Wasp docked to Houston, half-way across the continent, most people missed the personal reason why.

Cape Kennedy, formerly Cape Canaveral, built on the Florida sands with many headaches, heartaches, and several billion dollars, suddenly found itself playing second fiddle to Houston. The motels were emptied, the automobile rental agencies faced difficulties, the area around Cape Kennedy slumped.

The credit — or blame — for this does not go to the Texan in the White House but to the persistence and power of one congressman — Rep. Albert Thomas, Democrat, of Houston.

Thomas occupies the strategic position of No. 2 Democrat on the House Appropriations Committee and has used that power to switch government contract after contract to Houston until he has helped make that city one of the most prosperous in the nation.

In latter months, Congressman Thomas has been a pathetic physical figure. His body ridden with cancer, he has sometimes not been able to rise from his chair at committee meetings. He is helped to his feet and escorted out of the room at the hearings close.

Cancer has been with him for some time and he has been subjected to heavy doses of cobalt. The ordinary person would have retired long ago. But Thomas has hung on, determined to continue his domination over the committee which partially controls the purse-strings of the nation. Last December he flew back to Houston in a special airplane for further treatments, and was not expected to return. However, he continues on the job.

And the big celebration in Houston, plus the transfer of space activities from Cape Kennedy to Houston, is a tribute to his persistence, his congressional seniority, and his personal, persnickety, political power.

—POWER OF COMMITTEE CHAIRMEN—

Thomas's power also illustrates the battle upcoming between the first Southern president in 100 years and committee chairmen, chiefly elected from the South. Thomas of Houston has long battled for the supremacy of Congress over the White House, insisted on attaching to his appropriation bills provisions requiring the executive to come back to Congress on various petty building projects which required months, even years of delay.

Last week another Southern committee chairman, Mendel Rivers of South Carolina, suddenly moved to hamstring the White House by inserting an amendment in the military construction bill preventing the executive from closing military bases without the permission of the House and Senate Armed Services Committees. Every congressman, of course, demands that military bases be kept going in his district.

This is a battle which dates back to the days of Herbert Hoover, who proposed closing the old Indian forts of the Far West. He got such a howl from Congress that most of them remained open.

Ironically, the challenge to President Johnson on bases has come from Rivers of South Carolina, an alcoholic, whom his committee colleagues have urged to stay on the wagon at least long enough to win this fight with the first Southern president in 100 years.

—RESHAPING NEW YORK—

Back in 1954, Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. was urged by Teddy Kheel, the labor mediator, Debs Meyers, the PR man to Mayor Wagner, and David Karr, who used to work for me, to run for mayor of New York. He declined, called the mayoralty a dead end street, ran for attorney general of New York instead, and got beat.

Today Franklin is available to run for the job he previously didn't want and, if he does run, it will reshape political history on two fronts. They are:

Front No. 1 — will be a religious battle. For no Democratic Protestant has been elected mayor of New York in this century. New York mayors have been Catholics.

At present, Democratic forces are maneuvering to nominate District Attorney Frank Hogan, able and popular but who doesn't want to run; or Frank O'Connor, Queens district attorney; or Deputy Mayor Ed Cavanaugh, whose sister, Barbara, Mayor Wagner expects to marry.

Front No. 2 — will be a grab for political power by the Kennedy Clan, using FDR Jr. as the front man. This will spotlight the poorly-concealed rivalry between the Kennedy brothers and the Johnson-Humphrey axis.

It will also remind the public that it was FDR Jr. who gave Hubert Humphrey the unkindest cut of all in the West Virginia primary against John F. Kennedy by criticizing his war record.

As Undersecretary of Commerce, FDR Jr. had some reason to hope that Johnson would promote him to the Cabinet after Luther Hodges retired as Secretary of Commerce. He didn't.

At any rate, Franklin will now be Bobby Kennedy's candidate for mayor of New York. He also has the backing of the No. 1 power in Harlem, Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, and the old boss of the Bronx, ex-congressman Charley Buckley.

With a glamorous name, the solid backing of Negro voters, and heavy support from Jewish voters, FDR Jr. might be able to overcome the anti-Protestant precedent.

Whether he does or not, and whether he beats Rep. John Lindsay, able liberal Republican, for mayor, Bobby Kennedy will step into fill the political vacuum left by the exit of Bob Wagner as mayor of New York. His retirement is a leg up toward putting another Kennedy in the White House.

—DIRKSEN AND THE DRUG COMPANIES—

If you want an explanation of why gnarled, grizzled Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen, the Senate Republican leader, has been devout in battling for the big drug companies, take a look at his campaign contributions. They are most revealing.

When the late Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee was drafting a drug bill, it was the Senator from Illinois who blocked him at every turn of the road. He used delaying tactics inside the Senate Judiciary Committee. He fought Kefauver in public hearings. He fought him on the Senate floor. It was only the shocking scandal of thalidomide, a drug which when taken by pregnant women produced malformed babies, which finally helped Kefauver defeat Dirksen's blocking tactics.

If you take a look through the musty files of the U.S. Senate, you will find that Dirksen received more contributions from executives of drug companies than any other Senator.

Here is a list of his benefactors:

J. M. Olin and Spencer T. Olin, executives of Squibb & Sons, $1,000 each; E. Clifford Upjohn of the Upjohn Drug Company, $250; D. Mead Johnson of Mead Johnson & Co., $1,000.

The members of G. D. Searle & Co., makers of Enovid, an oral contraceptive, were most generous. Members of the family contributed as follows: William L. Searle, $400; Daniel C. Searle, $400; John G. Searle, $500; Suzanne Searle, $400.

Philip B. Hofman, chairman of Johnson & Johnson, gave Dirksen only $100.

W. C. Conner, president of Alcon Laboratories and chairman of Conal Pharmaceuticals, Inc., also was on the stingy side. He coughed up only $100.

But Alfred E. Driscoll, former governor of New Jersey, head of Warner - Lambert Pharmaceutical Co., was more generous. He contributed $500.

These are only part of the $92,004.11 total of receipts chalked up by the Senator from Illinois to help his re-election. He spent a total of $154,457.77 but did not say whom the balance came from, since $66,633.07 was brought in by a fund-raising dinner.

Miss Donna Kaye Cline And Don Owen Blazer Say Vows

The Reverend Norman S. Deaton, pastor, was the officiant of the double ring ceremony Friday afternoon, June fourth, at two o'clock in the First Baptist Church of Sheffield, Ala., when Miss Donna Kaye Cline exchanged wedding vows with Don Owen Blazer. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. David H. Cline of Sheffield, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Blazer of Sheffield.

Arrangements of white gladioli and pompons interspersed with fern flanked by burning tapers in branched candelabra, adorned the wedding scene.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a creation fashioned of white bridal satin and Chantilly lace designed with a fitted bodice and long tapered sleeves which fastened at the wrists with tiny covered buttons. Her veil of illusion cascaded from a small cabbage rose of imported organza and she carried a bridal bouquet of white orchids encircled with lilies of the valley. The bride's only ornament was a strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Teresa Cline, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The bridesmaid was Miss Sylvia Mullendore.

They wore dresses of pink silk featuring a lace overblouse. Their headdresses were circlet veils attached to a satin rose. Each carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Stock and white carnations adorned the reception rooms at the Masonic Temple. Those assisting were Mrs. Richard Ingram, Mrs. Mary Jane Adair, Mrs. George E. Davis of Nashville, Tennessee. The guest register was kept by Miss Beverly McCord.

MARRIED LAWYERS

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP) — Two lawyers in the family don't pose as many problems as one might expect, says Bill Marschall, one of the Texas Jaycee's Five Outstanding Young Men.

Speaking of his wife, Pat, who is an attorney in her own right, Marschall says, "Most of the time it's an asset, because we can take an interest in each other's work."

Only once have they clashed in the courtroom. That came early in their San Angelo careers, when the two were employed by separate law firms. Said Marschall:

"It led to some pretty hot discussions at home."

The Marschalls have two small daughters now who are getting more attention from Mrs. Marschall than the legal profession. She still works a few hours a day and will return to full practice when the children grow older.

Cards Drop Pirates 5 to 2 Taylor Stars In Relief

Two unearned runs and strong relief pitching pushed the Cardinals to a 5-2 victory Monday night at St. Louis over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The score was tied at 2-2 in the fifth inning when Pirate shortstop Gene Alley allowed a grounder to get through scoring Julien Javier. Left fielder Bob Bailey then bobbled the ball and Bill White also raced home.

St. Louis picked up its final run in the sixth on three singles and another error by Alley.

Ron Taylor took over for rookie Steve Carlton in the fifth and allowed only two hits the rest of the way. Taylor received credit for the victory, his second against one loss. Bob Veale was the Pirate loser.

It was announced after the game that Taylor had been traded to Houston for lefthander Hal Woodeshick. The Astros and Cards also swapped a couple of minor league pitchers.

Kansas City was idle Monday and returns to action tonight against the Los Angeles Angels. Diego Segui will start for the A's in Municipal Stadium against Marcelino Lopez of the Angels.

Ray Sadecki will get another starting chance tonight for the Cards against Pittsburgh and Don Cardwell. Sadecki, a 20-game winner last year, has managed only a 2-6 mark this season and has been hit heavily.

Taylor To Astros For Woodeshick

ST. LOUIS AP -- Ron Taylor left the St. Louis Cardinals laughing, the Pittsburgh Pirates moaning and the Houston Astros waiting anxiously for his arrival.

The right - handed reliever pitched the Cardinals to a 5-2 victory over the Pirates Monday night with 4 2-3 innings of shutout pitching. Moments after the game, word went out that he had been traded to the Astros for left-handed reliever Hal Woodeshick.

"I feel better about leaving this way - helping the team," Taylor said after his finest stint of the season. "Red Manager Red Schoendienst called me into his office and told me after the game."

Before Monday night's victory, Taylor had a 1-1 record. He had pitched 39 innings in 24 games and given up 22 earned runs for a 5.08 earned run average.

Taylor, 28, was 8-4 last season and played a big role in the Cardinals' pennant drive.

Woodeshick, 32, had his big year in 1963 when he was 11-9, with a 1.97 ERA and saved numerous games for the Astros. His record sank to 2-9 last season, but he had an ERA of 2.77 and still was Houston's ace in the bullpen. In 27 games this season, he is 3-4 with a 3.09 ERA.

The Cardinals also acquired right-hander Chuck Taylor, 22, from Houston's Amarillo farm club in return for left-hander Mike Cuellar, 28, of St. Louis' Jacksonville team. The two pitchers will switch teams.

N.F.L. And A.F.L. Fight For Atlanta

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK AP -- Pete Rozelle is marshaling his National Football League forces for the mighty battle of Atlanta against the American Football League.

Chances are the NFL's adroit commissioner will muster the support he needs from the league's top echelon. And chances are his masterly finessing for the prized Dixie territory will pay off in victory.

Rozelle, who stepped in at the 11th hour to foil a possible uncontested grab of Atlanta by the AFL, has about two weeks to get the necessary backing from his 14 team owners to award a franchise to the Southern stronghold. Twelve yes votes will swing it, and the trend definitely is yes.

As Associated Press survey showed today that seven NFL clubs are on record as favoring the move into Atlanta in 1966.

They are the Baltimore Colts, Cleveland Browns, Dallas Cowboys, Detroit Lions, Minnesota Vikings, Philadelphia Eagles and Pittsburgh Steelers.

Owners of four other clubs -- the New York Giants, St. Louis Cardinals, Los Angeles Rams and Washington Senators -- were not ready to commit themselves. And bosses of the Green Bay Packers, Chicago Bears and San Francisco 49ers were not available for comment.

There were no hints of a dissenting voice in the poll.

Should Rozelle be given the go-ahead, the next step would be to award the franchinse -- most likely to a syndicate headed by Lindsey Hopkins, an affluent Atlantan, and including Texas oilman John Mecom Jr. and Tony Hulman, who runs the Indianapolis Speedway.

Then would come the vital development -- choosing a pro football tenant for Atlanta's imposing new $18 - million stadium.

The AFL gave a franchise to the Cox Broadcasting Corp. of Atlanta last week, apparently under the impression the stadium was set. But after a pitch by Rozelle, the stadium authority announced it would not name a pro football tenant before July 1.

That gave Rozelle the time he needs to make a crash survey of the prospects, report to his owners, and take a vote.

Insiders feel the vote will be for expansion into Atlanta -- and that, given the choice, Atlanta will go for the NFL.

Maloney Hurls No Hitter, Loses

By DON BANDY

CINCINNATI (AP) —"That's baseball I guess," Jim Maloney said softly. "I can't compare this game to any other. It's by far the best I've ever pitched."

Maloney was slumped in his chair. He couldn't recall exactly how it felt to lose after pitching 10 innings of no-hit baseball Monday night against the New York Mets.

The no-hitter came to a sudden halt in the top of the 11th when giant-killer Johnny Lewis, a .250 hitter, slugged a towering home run that gave New York a 1-0 victory over Maloney and the Cincinnati Reds.

Maloney's astonishing performance goes into the record books as 10-inning no-hitter. The 25-year-old fireballing right-hander wound up with a two-hitter as the Mets' Roy McMillan cracked a single moments after the home run.

"Lewis hit a fast ball," Maloney said quietly, the sweat pouring off his overworked body. "I was just trying to keep the ball in on him and it got out just a little bit.

"He hit the same kind of pitch for a homer off me the last time the Mets were here."

What was going through Maloney's mind as the game wore on?

"I knew I had a no-hitter going and I wanted to pitch a no-hitter," he explained.

"That's what I try to do every time I start."

Maloney then lifted himself painfully from the chair, headed to the showers, but said over his shoulder:

"I'd just as soon win ball games as pitch a no-hitter."

Maloney has flirted with no-hit fame before, pitching three one-hitters. In his first start this year, April 19 against Milwaukee, he gave up just one hit, a single in the eighth to Denis Menke.

Last year, the Fresno, Calif., native pitched a one - hitter against the Mets, and in 1963 he hurled a one-hitter against the Chicago Cubs.

Maloney joins nine other pitchers who have hurled at least nine innings of no-hit ball, but then lost in extra innings.

Maloney did tie a National League strikeout record for an extra-inning game. He fanned 18 to equal the number Warren Spahn, then with the Braves, struck out in 15 innings against Chicago in 1952. Spahn is now with the Mets.

Three of Maloney's strikeouts came at the expense of Lewis, the Mets' right fielder. But in the 11th, Lewis eyed a 2-1 pitch, and slammed it against a center-field extension, just a few feet above the home-run line.

Half of Lewis' round-trippers have been against Cincinnati pitchers, and two of them also helped the Mets beat the Reds in two other games.

"I can't help but feel good," Lewis said. "But it was a heartbreaker for Maloney to lose. He threw good, real good. In fact, I never saw a pitcher throw as hard to me as Maloney did."

The homer didn't appear to shake up Maloney on the mound. He continued throwing hard and struck out Ron Swoboda. Then McMillan lasheda single to center. Maloney ended the inning by getting Jesse Gonder to hit into a double play. But the damage had been done.

Cincinnati made a vain try in its half of the 11th. Frank Robinson singled after two outs, but was stranded as Gordy Coleman grounded out.

Mauch To Lead N.L. In All-Star Game

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies finished in a second-place tie last season, but their manager, Gene Mauch, has been placed in charge of the National League All-Star team.

League President Warren C. Giles announced Mauch's appointment Monday and said the American League manager will be named later this week.

The annual game between the All-Stars will be held July 13 at Minneapolis - St. Paul.

It has been baseball tradition that the managers of the two pennant-winning clubs will be in charge of the next year's All-Star teams, but both the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees managers left their jobs after the 1964 World Series.

Johnny Keane, who led St. Louis to its first world championship since 1946, is now manager of the Yankees. Yogi Berra, who managed the Yankees last year, is a coach with the New York Mets.

There is no duty we so much underrate as the duty of being happy. — Robert Louis Stevenson

FORT SCOTT, Kan. AP-- Teddy Sweets, 5-11, 225-pound Fort Scott Junior College back, announced Monday he had signed to play professional football next season with the Toronto Rifles.

Sweets, who came to Fort Scott from Butler, Mo., High School, led rushers in the Jayhawk Junior College Conference last season with 922 yards.

Mr. Charles Blanton, II
Editor-in-Chief
Daily Sikeston Standard
Sikeston, Missouri

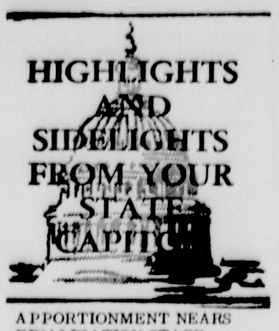
Today is June 14, Flag Day. Traditionally, we Americans have displayed outside our homes and places of business the Stars and Stripes of the United States of America -- to say, in effect, "America, how proud of you are we and how grateful for your promise of freedom to our children." My husband and I bought our flag when we were first married, before our children were born. The flag is put up in the morning and taken down at night and folded according to specifications and never allowed to touch the ground. Now the older two children are being taught the Pledge of Allegiance, although they are still too young to pronounce all the words correctly. Sometimes we forget to raise the flag on one holiday or another, and on those days, when I realize my neglect, I feel a pang of regret that I have failed to do one of the small things that shows pride and allegiance to my country. Most places of business and all government offices still display the colors on specified days, but what has happened to the individual?

Following is a hopefully theoretical account of history of our country -- written perhaps a thousand years from now (or perhaps not so long) by some future student of the ways of man.

"The United States of America -- one of the greatest working republics ever known to man. Born of liberty and died of apathy. Begun at a time when religious and personal freedom were being supressed to the point that man's dignity demanded a land of the free. Always in a country there are those who want to rule too strictly, set the laws of life too explicity and force their own will upon the people. This also began to happen in early America, but freedom reigned through constant struggle and perserverance to the concept that man is able to govern himself in as many aspects of life as are feasible in a civilization. The country and the people grew and prospered -- always in the hearts of all was an immense pride in living in a place so beautiful, so bountiful and so free. What a truly great thing to say 'I am an American; for this I am grateful enough to give daily thanks to my own God, brave enough to lay down my life, and proud enough to display my colors and pledge my allegiance.' People from the world over risked many perils to be able to come to this country and in time to be able to make this statement. But the numbers of the people grew more and the frontiers were won and the people settled down to making the "good life" for themselves. The awsome responsibility of retaining their precious individual freedoms became too heavy a burden; the people began to shift the responsibility to the federal, or central, government. So, over the decades, the power of the government grew and the power of the people diminished. Americans had taken away from them, with almost no protest, the right to pray out loud in their schools; indeed, they seemed not to care about praying for their land of freedom anymore. They became so secure in this land of plenty that they were afraid to risk their gains in war; no matter if the war were to be fought in order to preserve the dignity of man -- all that seemed to matter was the insurance of 'plenty of everything for all.' They dismissed as 'warmongers' those few who were brave enough to even state the necessity of war. Then, out of forgetfulness, lack of pride, selfishness, and some infiltration of opposing forces, people began to leave the national banner in closets on those days when it had long been custom to display the flag. It became a rarity to see a display of the colors by an individual and even cause for ridicule upon those few who did!

"After this great nation fell, few could explain why it did. There were no great wars in which the people of America were subdued by force -- they seemed merely to tire of supporting themselves and proclaiming their duty and honor as citizens. They let themselves be overtaken and governed by a few opportunists. Some cried out in dispair, for they could look beyond the comfortable present to the horror of a future when the once great ideals of the original constitution were so altered as to be forgotten. But they were too few; the voice of the individual could no longer be heard. And the questions remain: Why did those fortunate people cease to care about the preservation of their freedom? Why did they forget the great concepts and the many who died and lived for these ideals? Why did they allow themselves to become that which they originally abhorred?" Question: Who displayed the flag today?

Sincerely
Mrs. Bert H. Rowe, Jr.



APPORTIONMENT NEARS FINALIZATION STAGE

The House has given in and finally reapportioned itself, much to the consternation of some but to the relief of others and the Senate was expected to give a pretty fast okay to primary House proposals.

However, it appears very unlikely that a proposal calling for equal four-year terms for members of the House will ever get off the ground. Another issue in which the House seeks more clerical help probably will be compromised.

On top of all the bitterness surrounding the reapportionment question at the state level is a heap of abuse being hurled at the U. S. Supreme Court for causing all the trouble in issuing its now famous one-man, one-vote edict.

As things now stand, if the people approve the reapportionment question in a special constitutional election, the cities of Missouri (primarily St. Louis and Kansas City) will stand to gain a lapful while much of rural Missouri will more or less be lumped.

It's a common thing to hear around the state Capitol these days, remarks attributed to metropolitan legislators to wit: wait until reapportionment and then see what happens to their pet proposals.

Among these proposals given a good chance for favorable action under a reapportioned legislature are the bitterly-contested school transportation law providing state aid for carrying parochial and private school children to and from class; horse racing with its accompanying pari - mutuel betting, etc.

For many months, one of the staunchest supporters of reapportionment has been Governor Warren E. Hearnes, but some legislators now feel that the governor in the near future will be in for a shock when he receives on his desk for approval such legislation as above.

He will be in an awkward position, indeed, because of his courting of the metropolitan areas. After reapportionment they, logically, will want what they already are considering their due.

As one rural legislator put it: "When that time comes, I wouldn't want to be in his (Hearnes') shoes."

While the reapportionment question appears to be headed for the state-side ballot, the final okay must come through federal court acceptance.

GOVERNMENT LAUNCHES AN 'ANTI-SMOKING' PROGRAM

The state of Missouri, at least on the executive department level, appears to have launched its own private campaign to stamp out office smoking.

Recently placed around many departmental offices were handsome prison-made walnut ash trays which scorch at the touch of a lighted cigaret.

While a few of the wooden ash depositories now bear burn marks (inflicted by the brave) after being around several weeks, most remain unblemished indicating the possibility of a decrease in smoking.

So far, the matter hasn't caused any legislative action nor has any move been initiated to require such ash trays for all smoking state employes.

However, the possibility exists that should they become the vogue, cigaret smokers more than likely would forego the habit (at least while on the job) and climb a few executive walls rather than be charged with malicious destruction of state property.

NYLON COMES OF AGE, KIRKPATRICK REPORTS

Secretary of State James C. (Jimmy) Kirkpatrick is showing signs of becoming one of the hardest working state secretaries Missouri has ever had.

To show that he is keeping tabs on the vast operations under his command, Kirkpatrick recently took note of the fact that one recently - organized Missouri company listed as its reason for being was the manufacturing of nylon shoes for horses.

The Corporations Department, under the Secretary of State's office, is processing an average of 420 new companies per month, Kirkpatrick reported. Among recent additions were four wig manufacturers, along with a host of others.

And, the War on Poverty isn't being overlooked. Since Kirkpatrick took office five and one-half months ago, some 60 economic development corporations have been formed.

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENTS

The General Assembly finally has taken the bull by the horns, after shunting aside the problem for several sessions, and passed legislation to abolish the office of county superintendent of schools where the post is nearly functionless.

Basically, the measure now awaiting action by Governor Hearnes, provides for leaving the office vacant in the two dozen or so counties not now having a superintendent and allowing abolishment in counties having three or less districts.

During the Japanese-Chinese War in 1937, the U.S.S. Mindanao was forced by a blockade to remain anchored in the river off Canton for about six months. The crew standing the deck watches were required to enter the weather conditions during each of their watches in the log. One such entry stated that the sky was clear, with the exception of one cloud directly over the ship. Each entry after that for several months simply repeated the report. What the men didn't know was that the logs were forwarded to Washington.

The captain was startled one day to receive sealed orders from Naval Headquarters. He feverishly tore open the envelope with visions of an important assignment, only to read: "Proceed 500 yards upriver and get out from under that damn cloud." — Ken Lightfoot

Looking Back Over The Years

50 years ago
June 15, 1915

The Vanduser ball team came to Sikeston Sunday with the full intention of trimming Sikeston. The Vanduser team had been playing good ball at other places but went to pieces early in the game with the result that the score was 22 to 3 in favor of Sikeston at the end of the seventh inning when the game was called.

The summer school being taught by Earl Van Horne and Miss Dunn has about 40 scholars.

The first open-air free concert of the Sikeston Band will be given in the Malone Park next Wednesday evening, according to Fred Schorle.

A crowd of young people from Sikeston had a picnic at Dexter Saturday night. They were: Misses Francoise Black, Lillian Kendall, Dorothy Miller, Virginia Matthews, and James Matthews, Fred Rodman, Cecil Jones and Murray Phillips of New Madrid.

Miss Abbie Morrison entertained a few of her friends Tuesday evening at her home. The guests were: Misses Hyacinth Sheppard, Evelyn Sutton, Alfreda Denton, Elizabeth Parks, Hayes Reese and Carlos Cole, Fred Fray, Raymond Weedle, Leonard Smith, Paul Slinkard and Leonard David.

The Malden baseball team defeated Sikeston in a game at Malden Wednesday afternoon with a score of 6-5.

H. J. Welsh has added to his equipment a beautiful new Miller funeral coach and ambulance mounted on a 115-horsepower Chrysler eight chassis. It is equipped with hot water heaters in both compartments, an electric fan, new improved attendants' seats and five lights in the ambulance compartment. Extra equipment also includes a compartment built in for a first aid kit, medicine, linens, and thermos bottles.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Gilooly of Essex are parents of a son born June 10 at the local hospital.

J. C. Runyon, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Runyon, farmers of near Salcedo, was drowned Sunday afternoon when he was caught in undercurrents while playing in Little River drainage ditch near his home.

Five years ago yesterday was a big day in Sikeston — work started on the construction of buildings for the airport that became the home of the Missouri Institute of Aeronautics.

Sikeston folks are waking from their war-time lethargy, and the town is buzzing with present and post-war plans. One of the largest deals of recent days was the purchase by Paul Jones, Jr., of the lot on the corner of Center and Scott streets. Jones plans to build a modern hotel on the site, which he purchased from John Russell. Mrs. Paul Jones, sr., has purchased, also from John Russell, the three stucco houses on North street just back of the post office. They will be maintained as an investment.

Bill Carson is purchasing from Marvin Ralph the Malone avenue building in which his business, the Sikeston Buffet, is located. Chip's Shoe Store occupies the other half of the building. An addition, 30 by 80 feet, is being made to the building on Malone avenue, occupied by the Foster - Matthews Grocery Co.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married three years and my problem is getting worse instead of better.

My husband and I get along fine when there are just the two of us but whenever we are with family or firends I get dizzy spells and my heart begins to pound like a trip hammer. Sometimes my stomach gets tied up in knots and I become nauseated and can't eat.

When I am with these same people and my husband is not present, I enjoy myself and feel just fine. I should tell you that my husband was not born in this country and his ways are a little different. My parents were opposed to our marriage but now they have accepted him. I've told myself that he is doing his best and I am no longer ashamed of the way he speaks.

What is the matter with me? --WEE SALLY

Dear Wee: You are having anxiety symptoms because of your subconscious feelings about your husband. Some people go through life half sick, dizzy, heart pounding, stomach in knots, without realizing that their physical discomfort comes from unrelieved tension.

You need outside help. Go to your family doctor for a complete physical checkup, and ask him to direct you.

Dear Ann Landers: Here is a word of warning to the mother who wanted to know if she should insist that her 17 - year - old daughter go to college.

Don't do it!!!!

My mother forced me to go to college when I was 17 because it was fashionable. I had no interest in college. I wanted to get a job. I knew my mother would never let up until she had her way, so I went.

I flunked out after the first semester and was sent home--disgraced. After several months my mother found another college that would take me. (It wasn't easy after a wash-out.) I flunked a second time and was sent home again.

That failure nearly caused me to have a nervous breakdown. I was sure I was a moron and not fit to live.

It took several weeks before I could get up the nerve to go out and look for work. Fortunately, I landed a perfect job. It gave me satisfaction, dignity and a feeling of personal worth. I've had two promotions in the last year and I'm happier now than I've ever been in my life.

I'm glad you told that ambitious mother college is not for everyone. If a person doesn't want to go he doesn't belong there. --TRUE STORY

Dear Story: You are so right. In your case college was actually damaging. It accentuated your sense of failure and inadequacy. Thanks for sharing.

Dear Ann Landers: Why does a person let his mouth run away with him and say things he shouldn't? Mostly I exaggerate and distort. After I come home from a meeting or a party, or even a back fence visit, I hate myself.

I'm not a vicious person but often I feel an obligation to entertain people. Sometimes, in an attempt to be amusing, I go overboard. Then I become depressed and feel like biting off my tongue. Is there a cure for this?--BLABBERMOUTH

Dear Blab: Make a conscious effort to speak less and to listen more. A moment of silence is a pleasant and welcome sound.

Every man, woman and child has at one time or another said things he wished he hadn't --and has regretted it--so don't feel you are a freak.

If excessive drinking is wrecking your health or destroying someone you love, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help For The Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Americans Are Rolling Up Their Sleeves!

YES, ALL KINDS OF PEOPLE ARE GIVING BLOOD SO THAT OUR WOUNDED MAY LIVE!

● Today, the blood of a Boston bookkeeper may be flowing through the veins of a wounded kid from a Kansas farm . . . the blood of a pretty Southern housewife may have saved the life of a grizzled leatherneck. For, blood is blood, a God-given miracle for which there is no substitute . . . and when a man's life hangs in the balance and blood is needed, there is nothing else to take its place!

Right now the need for blood is urgent. In hospitals—at home and overseas—many men require four and six transfusions during delicate operations. And the blood must be there—when it's needed. So give the most precious gift of all—your blood!

Be assured that giving blood is neither difficult nor distressing. And what a thrill there is in knowing that you've performed a really unselfish act! So call your local American Red Cross today and make an appointment. And tell your friends and neighbors about your experience. Let them share the wonderful feeling Americans get when they roll up their sleeves—and give blood.

But—
WHAT HAPPENED TO THAT PINT OF BLOOD YOU WERE GOING TO GIVE?

Call Your American Red Cross Today!

Goetsch, 81 Still Blowing

WAUKESHA, Wis. AP--After nearly half a century, business is still booming for George Goetsch, 81.

A licensed blaster, he blows up the unwanted river ice jams, rock deposits, farm silos blocking suburban developments. For him, it is hobby, habit and profit.

A tall, big-boned man with large hands, he has never had an accident. "If you had one, it would just be one good one," he says.

Retired from his regular job as a custodian, Goetsch continues to work with explosives ranging from a single pound for some projects up to a ton for quarry and rock work.

Once the Americans commit units to open combat, it will be an American war. For all practical purposes, the Vietnamese command will have to cede at least some of is control to the foreign ally.

American officers argue that increased American control will improve efficiency and inject a new fighting spirit into the exhausted forces now facing the Viet Cong.

Many Vietnamese argue that an American army in Viet Nam will look too much like a French army and will turn increasing numbers of Vietnamese away from the government and toward the Viet Cong.

They also feel the Vietnamese army will tend to shrug its shoulders and say, "Why get killed now? The outcome depends on what the Americans do, not on us?"

Regarding future joint Vietnamese-American military operations, American officials say, "Details are still being worked out."

The expression "white elephant" originated when the famous American showman P. T. Barnum procured, at the cost of a small fortune, an albino elephant. But it proved disappointing as an attraction in his circus, expensive to maintain and almost impossible to dispose of. Actually, an albino elephant is not white but a light gray rather than gray or brownish-gray.

Hero Objects To Beatles

LONDON AP -- A Royal Air Force hero mailed his royal decoration - member of the Order of the British Empire -- back to Queen Elizabeth II today because he objects to the Beatles getting the same honor.

Former squadron leader Paul Pearson said he meant no insult to the queen.

"I hope she will realize she has been tricked into making a political award by her ministers," he said.

Pearson, wartime leader of an air-sea rescue squad in the Straits of Dover, accused Prime Minister Harold Wilson of recommending the Beatles for the award as a vote-getting gimmick.

"The award has been cheapened and debased," he said. "Hundreds of thousands of people who served in the war must feel as I do."

Pearson is the second holder of the M.B.E to send his insignia -- a heavy silver cross -- back to the queen in protest at the award to the Beatles.

Hector Dupis, a former member of the Canadian Parliament, mailed his Monday, complaining he had been placed on the same level as "vulgar nincompoops."

The Beatles, one of Britain's big dollar earners, were given the award in the queen's birthday honors list last week. Although made in the name of the queen, the royal honors are awarded on the recommendation of the prime minister. The Beatles were saying nothing about the controversy.

Two buddies and I still chuckle over the time we were home on leave together; we decided to go to morning service at the church we had all attended. The pastor noticed us, and when the time came for announcements, he asked us to stand. "I think," he said, "we ought to consider these young men who are prepared to go out and give their lives for our country. I want you to take a good look at these young men. They're what stands between us and the enemy! Let us pray." — Francis P. Conner

Early Youth Police Record May Close Door To Jobs

"Too many young people today are woefully unaware of the harm that a police record for a seemingly petty violation can do to their lives."

So writes Judge Jerome M. Lasky in a June Reader's Digest article, "Hijinks That Can Haunt Your Life." Judge Lasky, who as a judge on New York's Nassau County District Court dealt with many offenders from 16 to 19 years of age, warns that however petty an offense may seem at the time, the offender may find many doors closed to him because of his police record.

This could make it impossible to enter a profession where a special license is needed, such as law or real estate brokerage. It could hurt a young man's chances of acceptance into the armed services, or deny him promotion to officer status if he is accepted. Many firms are similarly reluctant to hire young men with records.

Judge Lasky notes that many youngsters get into trouble because they step over the line between high-spirited fun and legal offense. These "innocent offenders" are normally law-abiding citizens whose one misstep often result in long-term punishment, even if the courts set them free. Typical were the three young men who decided to go swimming in the nude. They were arrested by a passing officer and pleaded guilty to indecent exposure. Just a high-spirited impulse, yet they'll have it on their records for life.

The Digest article offers a number of tips for staying out of trouble. Among them are these. 1) Avoid showing disrespect to a police officer, especially if there's a crowd gathered. An act of defiance may force an officer to make an arrest. 2) Don't "stand around" if a gang fight or other riot is taking place. Innocent bystanders are sometimes arrested by policemen who are unable to tell those who are involved from those who are not.

The article is condensed from The Christian Herald.

First Youth Corps At Charleston

CHARLESTON -- The first six-week phase of the Neighborhood Youth Corps work-training program is a success, Dick B. Clough, program director, told the Board of Education recently.

In his report to the board, Mr. Clough said efforts toward re-enrolling school dropouts and increasing future employability of youths in the program were successful. Other phases of the report dealt with increases in school attendance and greater participation in school activities of enrollees.

The final part of Mr. Clough's report stated that enrollees spent about 60 per cent of the money they earned through the program on clothes, 15 per cent on school expenses, 8 per cent on family expenses and the remainder on hospital bills, transportation, college funds and savings.

Mr. Clough said the summer work program of the project, financed with federal funds, will employ 32 boys and four girls in three job classifications; secretarial aides, custodial helpers and maintenance helpers. Pupils will work 25 hours per week during the summer months, with additional time devoted to guidance activities, including interviews and tests.

Several youths between ages 16 and 21 who have left school are participating in the program, Mr. Clough reported.

The Charleston program is operated directly by the U.S. Department of Labor.

Food Chain Signs Shopping Center Lease

Sikeston is to be the site of a three-quarter million dollar Safeway Food Store, it was learned today.

Safeway Stores, Inc., signed a lease with George Staples, developer of the Kingsway Plaza Shopping Center, for 21,000 square feet.

The store, one of a chain across the nation, will employ 28 persons and will be built to the latest standards.

As explained by Horace Justice, division manager of Safeway Stores, construction is waiting for the rest of the leases to be signed. George Staples of Charleston is the leasing agent for the shopping center.

The center is to be located on South Kingshighway at Murray Lane. It is designed by A.F. and Arthur Stauder Architects of St. Louis.

Staples also announced that several other leases have been signed but the parties involved are not ready to release the information.

"Tenative plans are presently set for construction to begin August 1, providing the different tenants get their plans to the architects," Staples said.

Construction work is to be done by Staples Real Estate and Loan Company, and a general superintendent will be appointed to oversee the construction. No bids will be taken, but sub-contracts will be made for different phases of the job, Staples said.

Domingo Gunfire Kills Two

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) -- A sharp exchange of gunfire between U. S. paratroopers and rebel forces today killed two civilians and wounded seven.

It was not immediately clear what touched off the shooting. Several homes and a business house on the rebel side were set afire.

At least two rounds of 106mm recoilless rifle fire smashed into a burning building where Dominican firemen were trying to put out the flames.

The dead were a 13-year-old boy and a 2-year-old child.

Rebel sharpshooters were firing back at the paratroopers, whose lines were on a slight rise looking down into the rebel held zone of downtown Santo Domingo.

No Injuries In Minor Collision

A minor accident in front of the Houchins Donut Shop at eight a.m. today involved a garbage truck driven by Ronnie Collier, 301 Selma, and a Harts Bread truck driven by Harvey Spencer, Canalou.

Both were headed west when the Collier truck struck the bread truck in the rear, according to Sikeston police.

Minor damage and no injuries.

Five Injured In Accidents

All of the five injuries in the Troop E area Monday occurred in three of the six highway accidents, two of which were north of Benton, two near Poplar Bluff, and the fifth near Hayti.

In a one car accident at 1:05 p.m. Monday, two miles north of Poplar Bluff, Mrs. Helen Burnett, 37, Parma, Ohio, lost control of her 1965 Chevrolet, received injuries to her mouth, chin and legs, and her husband, Benjamin Burnett, 40, received abrasions on his head and arms. Both were taken to a hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Mrs. Carolyn Scivily, 61, driving a 1965 Mercury, and her husband Andrew Scivily, 62, both of Florissant, were injured in an accident Monday at 9:10 a.m. on Highway 61, four miles north of Benton. She was attempting to pass a car when a second car pulled in front of her, causing the car to leave the highway and into a creekbed. She received fractured ribs, and a possible back injury, while her husband received fractures to the right leg, jaw and possible internal injuries. They were taken to a Cape Girardeau hospital.

Dennis Loyd, 16, Hayti, was injured while riding a bicycle Monday at 12:05 p.m. on Highway 61, four miles north of Hayti, and taken to the Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital. He was struck by a 1960 Angela driven by John Wilson, 58, Hayti.

Russia Unveils Big One

PARIS (AP) — The Soviet Union unveiled today a mammoth transport plane which it said could carry 720 passengers or a payload of 80 tons.

The huge plane, more than five stories tall, landed at Le Bourget Airport for the International Air Show after a nonstop five-hour flight from Moscow.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said the plane had a maximum speed of 465 miles an hour and could fly 6,600 miles nonstop with a load of 45 tons.

Tass said it had been named the Antaeus, after a giant in Greek mythology.

The Antaeus is powered by four 15,000-horsepower double-propeller turboprop engines mounted on a wing welded into the top of the craft's cabin.

Although the Antaeus is, according to aircraft manufacturing representatives at the air show, the largest plane now in the air, the U.S. Air Force is planning a jet transport which may be even larger.

Douglas, Lockheed and Boeing Aircraft corporations are competing for the contract to build a triple-deck jet transport for the Air Force to be flown for the first time in 1968. Preliminary plans call for a seating capacity of 500-700.

3. The City Bond Issue

Increased Water Demands Necessitate Larger Supply

Editor's Note: This is the third of a series of articles prepared by the board of public works to explain its plan to improve the city's water and sewage system. Voters will be asked to approve the proposal in a bond election.

Increased industrial, commercial, and residential demands on Sikeston's water supply system make it necessary that the municipal water plant be expanded in capacity and that new facilities for water storage be constructed.

These community needs have been provided for in the board of public works plan to improve the city's water and sewer systems. Nineteen per cent or $229,000 of this $1,200,000 proposal has been allotted for the purpose of giving Sikeston a larger supply of better quality water.

Plans call for a new well more than 300 feet deep to be constructed to increase the raw water supply for the city's water plant, which will expand the capacity of the plant and, at the same time, improve the quality of the water produced. The settling basin will help reduce the amount of iron deposits present in the water.

Also improving the quality of the water will be a new chemical treatment designed to eliminate a red discoloration sometimes affecting the city's water.

Besides these measures, a new water storage tank will be constructed on the eastern edge of the city. This new tank will be at ground level and will have a capacity of 1,000,000 gallons.

Storage capacity of the present system is dangerously deficient from the standpoint of emergency water supply, which would be needed in case of a major fire in Sikeston. The existing storage facilities are a 300,000 gallon elevated tank and a 400,000 gallon clear-well reservoir.

The new well, the settling basin, and the new storage tank will provide emergency water supply and storage for fire and other eventualities, and will also help to maintain higher and steadier water pressures throughout the entire system than is now available.

All these improvements are needed, since the present water plant was designed 15 years ago with a capacity of 3.1 million gallons per day. The population of Sikeston today is 29 per cent greater than in 1950, and the water plant is approaching capacity operation. One day in the summer of 1964, the city used 2.8 million gallons of water.

Approval of these proposed improvements should eliminate the community's serious water problems, and allow the municipal water works to expand and meet the demands of a growing community.

9-Year-Old Publisher Long On News, Short on Spelling

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) -- The spelling is bad, but the news is told and the paper sells. This is the story of 9-year-old Philip Lee's newsletter, which he publishes in suburban College Park when the mood strikes him.

His brother Eric, 6, is circulation manager. Philip reported in the newsletter that Eric enters the first grade in September and adds: "He is pretty smart. The Editor has taute him all he knows."

Philip's mother, Mrs. George Lee, cuts his stencils for him, retaining his original spelling, and St. Mary's Episcopal Church provides a mimeograph machine. Philip's topics cover a wide range, from the neighborhood to Viet Nam.

For a nickel, you can read these items from Philip's latest edition:

"Sister Annunciata, a nun is sick and tird at St. Josephs Hosbital. She had an oporration for very close veins. She is tird because she has been on her feet for 50 yrs. God bless her."

"Mrs. Grace Olds broke her foot and she is very unhappy about it."

Reporting the upcoming marriage of Miss Laura Slade and Lt. Richard B. Skelton, Philip writes: "Everybody will be dressed up fine specily her grandmother Mrs. A. L. Slade who says she will look finer than anyone cept the bride. They will get married. And will live happily ever after."

Noting that Glenda Kimsey "studies underwater caves and climes montans," Philip concludes: "She is brave for a girl."

In an editorial on Viet Nam, Philip supports the U. S. position there, reasoning, "If some boys were picking on my brother Eric, I would help him."

Philip's venture into the publishing field began last March when he needed money to buy his brother a birthday present. Since then he's put out four editions -- and sold 110 copies of the last one.

"Philip's editorials," his mother says, "generally are on

State Senate Sends Arts Council Bill to House

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Senate Tuesday wound up debate on the controversial state arts council bill, passed it and sent it back to the House with minor changes.

One of the few new programs recommended by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, it would provide $250,000 to foster cultural activities throughout the state.

Opponents argued at length the money was needed elsewhere and that patronizing the arts is not the proper role for state governments. They tried several amendments to kill the bill, but failed.

One amendment which did succeed cut the membership of the council from 25 to 10 members. The council would decide how the funds are to be spent.

Presumably the money would be used to finance tours by symphony orchestras in St. Louis and Kansas City, traveling art exhibits and perhaps road shows by dramatic groups or ballet companies.

Four important bills were passed and sent to the governor.

The House passed, 119-16, a stiff fair employment practices bill. It forbids employers of more than 25 workers and all labor unions from denying employment or membership because of race, creed, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

Sponsors said it brings Missouri into line with federal anti-discrimination laws. The state law would be enforced by the Human Rights Commission.

The Senate passed another bill said to be in line with federal legislation. It would rule out experience as a substitute for educational qualifications in merit system jobs.

Without it, sponsors said, the federal government could withhold matching funds for some programs. Hardest hit would be the welfare programs where many case workers are long on experience, but lack degrees in social work.

Another would authorize Jackson County to lease property up to 50 years. It would pave the way for leasing facilities at the $40 million sports complex planned for Kansas City.

Changes in the state's new uniform commercial code were passed after differences between the House and Senate were ironed out in conference.

The House killed a bill to let cities levy a license tax on most vocations or businesses.

The Senate sent back to the House two bills with minor changes.

One would raise the weekly benefits under workmen's compensation laws from $42.50 to $47 for persons injured in industrial accidents.

Another would stop the salary

Water Works at Bertrand

BERTRAND — The city of Bertrand accepted a four-part bid this morning on the construction of a waterwork's system at a total cost of $125,000. The final approval will be given in a meeting on July 1 after the full government loan has been approved and then work order will be issued.

The four units, awarded separately, included the well and pump to the Lane Art Company, Stuttgart, Ark.; the elevated 50,000 gallon storage tank to the Pittsburgh Des Moines Co., Des Moines, Ia.; the well house and treatment plant to the Tarthenon Company, Sikeston; and the distribution system to H. E. Blinne, Poplar Bluff.

There were two bids on the well, three bids on the storage tank, and the balance numbering seven, on all four units. All bids were close and ranged from the low bid up to $135,000, according to Mayor L. J. Schwab.

Present at today's bid awarding were, Harry Littleton, Federal Home Administrator, Sikeston; Alex C. Waters, consulting engineer, Sikeston; Rod Ashby, attorney, Charleston; Mayor Schwab and Harvey Jobe, alderman.

Sour Grapes! Gets $698 From Picker

ST. LOUIS AP -- Sherman J. Fulkerson, 61, en route to his Kennett home, was robbed Monday night of $698 he had earned picking grapes in California.

Fulkerson told police he met a man at the Greyhound bus depot in St. Louis and walked with him to a nearby fruit stand. The man then grabbed a roll of bills Fulkerson had pulled from his pocket to pay for the fruit, and fled.

U. S. Combat Units Having To Be Used

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP -- The battle of Dong Xoai has brought the Vietnamese war to a threshold that many Vietnamese commanders are not anmious to cross-the first use of American combat units in battle.

It seems inevitable that U.S. units will soon be out on their own in full-fledged warfare with the guerrilla enemy. They were on the verge of that at Dong Xoai, and part of the U. S. Army's 173rd Airborne Brigade moved to within 20 miles of the fight.

They did not go in because Vietnamese generals did not want them. The brake was applied by Brig. Gen. Cao Van Vien, commander of the Vietnamese army's 3rd Corps, who was responsible for the operation.

"I think the Viet Cong is deliberately trying to draw American units into this fight," Vien said.

A number of top American officials agreed. It looked as if a primary objective of the Communists at Dong Xoai was to force commitment of the U.S. paratroopers to battle and perhaps to inflict enough casualties to make the Americans look bad.

The American commanders seemed ready to take the risk. They were armed with prior approval from Washington. The Vietnamese felt the gamble was not worth making, that it was better to commit their own reserves. Two battalions of Vietnamese troops were virtually wiped out at Dong Xoai.

At the root of Vietnamese reluctance to see the Americans move into the war more actively is an old bugbear of Vietnamese - American relations - national sovereignty.

Cape Girl Still Missing

No trace has been found of Betsy Gill, two-year-old Cape Girardeau girl who has been missing since Sunday when she reportedly walked away from her home about four p.m.

She is one of 10 children of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gill and had been playing with neighborhood children before vanishing.

A large number of volunteers, estimated at 100, have been searching for the infant.

Authorities fear the child wandered to the Mississippi River and fell in. The family residence is two blocks away from the river.

The U. S. Army Corps of Engineers provided a boat to search the river, which has been scoured from a mile north of the Cape bridge to more than a half mile south.

The possibility of her being picked up by a motorist has not been discounted by officers.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation has been notified, but is not on the case.

Five Arrested

Police arrested five men and one woman during the past 24 hours on charges varying from assault to failure to yield the right of way.

Curtis Byrd, Rt. 4, Sikeston, was charged with assault.

Barbara Jacobs, New Madrid, was charged with failing to yield the right of way to another vehicle.

Earl Nave, Neelyville, was charged with driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

Paul Glancy, Sikeston, was charged with public intoxication.

FIVE REPORTED ILL

It was reported today that five or more persons became ill and were taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital for treatment, presumably after they had eaten cream pie on Sunday. Among those reported ill were, Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Webb, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Malone, and Lynn Smith, the latter from Kennett.

Russia Unveils Big One

PARIS (AP) — The Soviet Union unveiled today a mammoth transport plane which it said could carry 720 passengers or a payload of 80 tons.

The huge plane, more than five stories tall, landed at Le Bourget Airport for the International Air Show after a nonstop five-hour flight from Moscow.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said the plane had a maximum speed of 465 miles an hour and could fly 6,600 miles nonstop with a load of 45 tons.

Tass said it had been named the Antaeus, after a giant in Greek mythology.

The Antaeus is powered by four 15,000-horsepower double-propeller turboprop engines mounted on a wing welded into the top of the craft's cabin.

Although the Antaeus is, according to aircraft manufacturing representatives at the air show, the largest plane now in the air, the U.S. Air Force is planning a jet transport which may be even larger.

Douglas, Lockheed and Boeing Aircraft corporations are competing for the contract to build a triple-deck jet transport for the Air Force to be flown for the first time in 1968. Preliminary plans call for a seating capacity of 500-700.

3. The City Bond Issue

Increased Water Demands Necessitate Larger Supply

Editor's Note: This is the third of a series of articles prepared by the board of public works to explain its plan to improve the city's water and sewage system. Voters will be asked to approve the proposal in a bond election.

Increased industrial, commercial, and residential demands on Sikeston's water supply system make it necessary that the municipal water plant be expanded in capacity and that new facilities for water storage be constructed.

These community needs have been provided for in the board of public works plan to improve the city's water and sewer systems. Nineteen per cent or $229,000 of this $1,200,000 proposal has been allotted for the purpose of giving Sikeston a larger supply of better quality water.

Plans call for a new well more than 300 feet deep to be constructed to increase the raw water supply for the city's water plant, which will expand the capacity of the plant and, at the same time, improve the quality of the water produced. The settling basin will help reduce the amount of iron deposits present in the water.

Also improving the quality of the water will be a new chemical treatment designed to eliminate a red discoloration sometimes affecting the city's water.

Besides these measures, a new water storage tank will be constructed on the eastern edge of the city. This new tank will be at ground level and will have a capacity of 1,000,000 gallons.

Storage capacity of the present system is dangerously deficient from the standpoint of emergency water supply, which would be needed in case of a major fire in Sikeston. The existing storage facilities are a 300,000 gallon elevated tank and a 400,000 gallon clear-well reservoir.

The new well, the settling basin, and the new storage tank will provide emergency water supply and storage for fire and other eventualities, and will also help to maintain higher and steadier water pressures throughout the entire system than is now available.

All these improvements are needed, since the present water plant was designed 15 years ago with a capacity of 3.1 million gallons per day. The population of Sikeston today is 29 per cent greater than in 1950, and the water plant is approaching capacity operation. One day in the summer of 1964, the city used 2.8 million gallons of water.

Approval of these proposed improvements should eliminate the community's serious water problems, and allow the municipal water works to expand and meet the demands of a growing community.

9-Year-Old Publisher Long On News, Short on Spelling

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) -- The spelling is bad, but the news is told and the paper sells. This is the story of 9-year-old Philip Lee's newsletter, which he publishes in suburban College Park when the mood strikes him.

His brother Eric, 6, is circulation manager. Philip reported in the newsletter that Eric enters the first grade in September and adds: "He is pretty smart. The Editor has taute him all he knows."

Philip's mother, Mrs. George Lee, cuts his stencils for him, retaining his original spelling, and St. Mary's Episcopal Church provides a mimeograph machine. Philip's topics cover a wide range, from the neighborhood to Viet Nam.

For a nickel, you can read these items from Philip's latest edition:

"Sister Annunciata, a nun is sick and tird at St. Josephs Hosbital. She had an oporration for very close veins. She is tird because she has been on her feet for 50 yrs. God bless her."

"Mrs. Grace Olds broke her foot and she is very unhappy about it."

Reporting the upcoming marriage of Miss Laura Slade and Lt. Richard B. Skelton, Philip writes: "Everybody will be dressed up fine specily her grandmother Mrs. A. L. Slade who says she will look finer than anyone cept the bride. They will get married. And will live happily ever after."

Noting that Glenda Kimsey "studies underwater caves and climes montans," Philip concludes: "She is brave for a girl."

In an editorial on Viet Nam, Philip supports the U. S. position there, reasoning, "If some boys were picking on my brother Eric, I would help him."

Philip's venture into the publishing field began last March when he needed money to buy his brother a birthday present. Since then he's put out four editions -- and sold 110 copies of the last one.

"Philip's editorials," his mother says, "generally are on

State Senate Sends Arts Council Bill to House

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Senate Tuesday wound up debate on the controversial state arts council bill, passed it and sent it back to the House with minor changes.

One of the few new programs recommended by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, it would provide $250,000 to foster cultural activities throughout the state.

Opponents argued at length the money was needed elsewhere and that patronizing the arts is not the proper role for state governments. They tried several amendments to kill the bill, but failed.

One amendment which did succeed cut the membership of the council from 25 to 10 members. The council would decide how the funds are to be spent.

Presumably the money would be used to finance tours by symphony orchestras in St. Louis and Kansas City, traveling art exhibits and perhaps road shows by dramatic groups or ballet companies.

Four important bills were passed and sent to the governor.

The House passed, 119-16, a stiff fair employment practices bill. It forbids employers of more than 25 workers and all labor unions from denying employment or membership because of race, creed, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

Sponsors said it brings Missouri into line with federal anti-discrimination laws. The state law would be enforced by the Human Rights Commission.

The Senate passed another bill said to be in line with federal legislation. It would rule out experience as a substitute for educational qualifications in merit system jobs.

Without it, sponsors said, the federal government could withhold matching funds for some programs. Hardest hit would be the welfare programs where many case workers are long on experience, but lack degrees in social work.

Another would authorize Jackson County to lease property up to 50 years. It would pave the way for leasing facilities at the $40 million sports complex planned for Kansas City.

Changes in the state's new uniform commercial code were passed after differences between the House and Senate were ironed out in conference.

The House killed a bill to let cities levy a license tax on most vocations or businesses.

The Senate sent back to the House two bills with minor changes.

One would raise the weekly benefits under workmen's compensation laws from $42.50 to $47 for persons injured in industrial accidents.

Another would stop the salary

Water Works at Bertrand

BERTRAND — The city of Bertrand accepted a four-part bid this morning on the construction of a waterwork's system at a total cost of $125,000. The final approval will be given in a meeting on July 1 after the full government loan has been approved and then work order will be issued.

The four units, awarded separately, included the well and pump to the Lane Art Company, Stuttgart, Ark.; the elevated 50,000 gallon storage tank to the Pittsburgh Des Moines Co., Des Moines, Ia.; the well house and treatment plant to the Tarthenon Company, Sikeston; and the distribution system to H. E. Blinne, Poplar Bluff.

There were two bids on the well, three bids on the storage tank, and the balance numbering seven, on all four units. All bids were close and ranged from the low bid up to $135,000, according to Mayor L. J. Schwab.

Present at today's bid awarding were, Harry Littleton, Federal Home Administrator, Sikeston; Alex C. Waters, consulting engineer, Sikeston; Rod Ashby, attorney, Charleston; Mayor Schwab and Harvey Jobe, alderman.

Sour Grapes! Gets $698 From Picker

ST. LOUIS AP -- Sherman J. Fulkerson, 61, en route to his Kennett home, was robbed Monday night of $698 he had earned picking grapes in California.

Fulkerson told police he met a man at the Greyhound bus depot in St. Louis and walked with him to a nearby fruit stand. The man then grabbed a roll of bills Fulkerson had pulled from his pocket to pay for the fruit, and fled.

U. S. Combat Units Having To Be Used

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP -- The battle of Dong Xoai has brought the Vietnamese war to a threshold that many Vietnamese commanders are not anmious to cross-the first use of American combat units in battle.

It seems inevitable that U.S. units will soon be out on their own in full-fledged warfare with the guerrilla enemy. They were on the verge of that at Dong Xoai, and part of the U. S. Army's 173rd Airborne Brigade moved to within 20 miles of the fight.

They did not go in because Vietnamese generals did not want them. The brake was applied by Brig. Gen. Cao Van Vien, commander of the Vietnamese army's 3rd Corps, who was responsible for the operation.

"I think the Viet Cong is deliberately trying to draw American units into this fight," Vien said.

A number of top American officials agreed. It looked as if a primary objective of the Communists at Dong Xoai was to force commitment of the U.S. paratroopers to battle and perhaps to inflict enough casualties to make the Americans look bad.

The American commanders seemed ready to take the risk. They were armed with prior approval from Washington. The Vietnamese felt the gamble was not worth making, that it was better to commit their own reserves. Two battalions of Vietnamese troops were virtually wiped out at Dong Xoai.

At the root of Vietnamese reluctance to see the Americans move into the war more actively is an old bugbear of Vietnamese - American relations - national sovereignty.

Cape Girl Still Missing

No trace has been found of Betsy Gill, two-year-old Cape Girardeau girl who has been missing since Sunday when she reportedly walked away from her home about four p.m.

She is one of 10 children of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gill and had been playing with neighborhood children before vanishing.

A large number of volunteers, estimated at 100, have been searching for the infant.

Authorities fear the child wandered to the Mississippi River and fell in. The family residence is two blocks away from the river.

The U. S. Army Corps of Engineers provided a boat to search the river, which has been scoured from a mile north of the Cape bridge to more than a half mile south.

The possibility of her being picked up by a motorist has not been discounted by officers.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation has been notified, but is not on the case.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Tuesday, June 15 Lloyd R. Waste invents paper bearing his name.

* * *

One of the ways to stay happier is to avoid an around-the-world trip.

The poverty one sees in India and other undeveloped countries defies accurate description. The squalor in which many poor people live in foreign countries is almost unbelievable. Ignorance is universal and sanitation is not existent. Superstition rules the lives of millions of miserable people.

What then is the world's greatest problem? There are so many problems that this thought is almost overwhelming in its implications.

A scholar, who has been a missionary to China, a preacher, a teacher and a civic leader in this country, described population as the greatest problem. Accurately it should be called overpopulation. The teeming masses of Asia made a profound impression on this wise and intelligent man.

Another great humanitarian, Dr. Albert Sabin, who developed the oral polio vaccine, says that the world's greatest menace is misery and poverty. While menace and problem are different words, misery and poverty certainly are both.

Dr. Salk's observation required a certain amount of detachment because his efforts now are devoted to cancer research. Cancer as one of the principal killers of humans also is entitled to high ranking as a problem even though Dr. Salk rates misery and poverty as bigger menaces.

He called in a Cincinnati speech for a global war on poverty.

"The countries of the East and West should cease fighting among themselves and join in a program to eliminate poverty and illiteracy," he said.

This brings up another world problem -- war. Through the ages it has been a major problem to humanity.

There is an inter-relationship between all the world's major problems -- certainly of all of those mentioned here.

How will they be solved.

Through education, of course, and not through formal education alone. Formal education helps but real education continues after school days are over.

Education can help produce more intelligent solutions but it alone is not enough.

The educated man must not only give his best thought to solving the problems but his reaction must be active and not passive. He must be willing to work to achieve the solutions that he has in mind.

The answer is think, work, act. No problem anywhere is ever solved except with these ingredients.

* * *

To our way of thinking the fellow who invented the little paperbound books deserves a place in history right alongside Thomas Alva Edison, who invented the light bulb; Alexander Graham Bell, who discovered the telephone, and the fellows who invented compound interest and discovered night baseball.

The highly disposable paperbacks have revolutionized reading habits and freed thousands of square feet in homes for such higher priority activities as cocktail parties and family fights.

The savings to home owners in space, once consumed by library shelves and heavy cloth and leather bound volumes, can only be reckoned in millions of dollars. A fortune also is being saved in maintenance and dusting the homes through the years and of hauling the books to the city dump when the old man died.

Nobody has ever been discovered who wanted all the books, which once cluttered up houses, except other libraries, which by accepting them only perpetuated the problem of keeping and maintaining them. Nobody wants to read them.

The paperbound books often are cloaked in a sexy cover, which in no way is descriptive of the drab contents inside. This encourages reading, which is not a bad thing.

The interest in literature and how to do a million and one things has been greatly stimulated by these little volumes, which are priced within the reach of everyone.

When a fellow gets through reading a paperbound book he leaves it on a bus or plane seat or in some other public place or just chucks it. They are light in weight, easy to carry in the hand, purse or pocket.

One thing is missing. Modern readers don't look as intelligent as they once did. Although reading has been made more convenient and less expensive it is no longer possible to pose for pictures in front of the library.

Guests aren't given the opportunity to gauge the intelligence of their hosts by counting the books and reading their titles, on the home library shelves standing row on row.

There was a time when erudition could be judged by the number of books on the shelves. Now all appraisals of educational and literary attainment must be made on the basis on how big a bonfire can be built in the back yard.

This gives substance to the old saying that where there is smoke there is bound to be fire.

Anyway books are like money. In the end you can't take 'em with you.

OUR NEGLECTED OLDSTERS

In a youth-oriented society, the problems of the elderly can too easily be put aside. That the aged do have troubles can be seen in government statistics which show that six million Americans over age 65 have incomes of less than $2,000 a year. Hearings on poverty among the elderly open on Wednesday, June 16, before the Senate Special Committee on Aging.

Chairman George A. Smathers (D Fla.) has said that despite efforts to date, "retirement for too many Americans is a one-way ticket to hopelessness." He is concerned because federal War on Poverty programs seem to be aimed at helping young people and give insufficient attention to those in voluntary or enforced retirement. He believes a special Job Corps program for retraining elderly men and women would yield big benefits for the nation.

Congress already is in the final stages of action on an administration - backed bill, the Older Americans Act of 1965, to create an "Administration on Aging" in the Health, Education and Welfare Department. The legislation would authorize $17.5 million over the next two years for grants to states and to public and private non-profit organizations to develop programs for the welfare of the aged. There is a certain sense of urgency behind this; 18 million Americans now are over age 65 and their numbers are increasing at the rate of 1,000 a day.

BOYCOTTING MEDICARE

The American Medical Association has bought 30 minutes of prime evening time on the ABC-TV network for Thursday (June 17) to argue against medicare. Beginning Sunday (June 20), about 25,000 physicians are expected at the four-day annual meeting of the A.M.A. in New York City.

THIS MAY BE the last convention of the American Medical Association at which the principle of medicare is the burning issue. So doctors can be excused for making the most of their terminal opportunity. As part of the final agony, efforts will be made to get approval for a nationwide physician boycott of the imminent program of medical insurance for the aged under social security.

So far, five of the 50 state medical associations have adopted resolutions urging physicians and surgeons not to participate in the medicare program when it finally becomes law. The five are the associations of Arizona, Florida, Louisiana, Ohio and Texas. Representatives from these states will be carrying their torch into the A.M.A.'s House of Delegates.

IT IS FAR from certain, however, that the 250-member policy making body will advise physicians to follow the well-trod path of non-violent non-cooperation. A.M.A. President Dr. Donovan Ward has urged state and local medical groups to defer any boycott resolutions until medicare actually becomes law. Significantly, the U.S. Senate won't take up the House-passed measure until July -- well after the A.M.A.'s annual meeting.

The New England Journal of Medicine cautions physicians against a no-surrender policy. It compares a medicare boycott to "demanding that the crew of a vessel go down with its ship." The A.M.A's "stubborn rear-guard action" in opposition to medicare, the journal declared, may actually be helping the legislation toward enactment.

Questions always arise as to whether any trade or professional association can assume to speak for the majority. Dr. Ivan L. Bennett, Jr., chief pathologist of the Johns Hopkins Medical School and Hospital, states that individual doctors "stay away from their societies' meetings in droves." This leaves matters to leaders who Bennett charges "have shown through the years an abiding faith in the belief that what is good for the doctor -- financially -- is good for the country."

BUT A SURVEY of scores of physicians from coast to coast by the Wall Street Journal disclosed that roughly 25 per cent intend to stay out of the medicare program. A few physicians even said they would not accept new patients coming to them under the program.

The most obvious form of non-cooperation would be refusal to fill out medical claims forms. A patient would then have to pay his bill out of his own pocket and file a claim for reimbursement with the medicare insurer. Administrative chaos still could result if the doctor refused to provide the patient with a statement as to the precise nature of the services rendered.

Non-participation by doctors is entirely legal under the medicare bill as now written. Nor can non-participation be assailed ethically under A.M.A. codes. They give the physician the right to "choose whom he will serve."

Many observers believe the boycott agitation is nothing more than a temporary means of release for emotions stirred by fears of socialized medicine. Some physicians once vowed to refuse participation in Blue Cross plans, when private health insurance was an innovation.

THE MOST PRECIOUS RIGHT

Civil rights is an overriding issue in America.

The right to the vote, to education, to equal accommodations is demanded not only by minorities, but by a sympathetic federal government.

At the same time, there is a cruel irony in this land of freedom. The United States is one of the few nations in the world with compulsory unionism -- where a man has to join a union to keep his job.

True, the right to work without joining a union still exists in 19 states. But it is under severe attack. The Johnson Administration wants to repeal the section of federal law which permits the states to preserve this freedom.

The right to vote or be admitted to the fanciest restaurant in town is little consolation to the worker of any race if he has no job. Other rights won't feed or clothe or house his wife and family if he has lost his most precious right -- the right to work. -- Nation's Business.

The Missouri State Highway Patrol investigated 25,998 rural traffic accidents last year. Some of the people involved in these accidents were under the impression that the trooper's accident report was all that was required. This was not true in many cases.

The Safety Responsibility Law of Missouri requires the operator or owner of every vehicle involved in an accident to file a written report within ten days to the Department of Revenue when the accident results in death or injury or when damage to property of any one person exceeds $100. This applies to every operator involved in an accident, regardless of who is to blame. If there is any doubt as to the amount of property damage, it is best to send in a report. Failure to comply with this law is punishable by suspension of one's driving license and fine up to $500.

Under the Safety Responsibility Law both the operator's and owner's driving license and registration certificate, as well as their automobile license plates, can be suspended. Withing 45 days after receiving a report of an accident, the Department of Revenue must enforce suspension unless it has received satisfactory evidence that the operator, or the owner has met his financial responsibility.

Colonel Hugh H. Waggoner, the Superintendent of the Missouri Highway Patrol, said: "The Safety Responsibility Law was enacted to protect everyone in Missouri against financially irresponsible owners and operators of motor vehicles who become involved in accidents. It also promotes street and highway safety by allowing the State to remove drivers from behind the wheel who habitually cause accidents."

The official forms required to be submitted under the Safety Responsibility Law may be obtained from any branch office of the Department of Revenue, from any Motor Vehicle Registration office, from members of the State Highway Patrol, and from other law enforcement officials. The reports filed with the Department of Revenue are confidential and cannot be used in civil court.

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP) —Weather is one of the most important words in war.

Every American over here talks about the weather — usually in uncomplimentary terms —but Capt. Norman F. Jacobs is one of the few who does anything about it.

He also can explain the vagaries of the two monsoon seasons over here, which have most people baffled.

As commander of Detachment 9 of the 30th Weather Squadron, Jacobs has a vital role.

In war, both ground and air operations are to a great degree dependent on the weather, and it is his onerous task to predict it accurately as far in advance as possible.

In the operations office of the big Da Nang air base, the captain, 32, who comes from Los Angeles, directs 22 American and Vietnamese Air Force helpers. He also works closely with 20 employes of the nearby Vietnamese civilian weather station.

Every morning and evening at 8 o'clock they send up a large transmitter-carrying balloon which rises to a height of 80,000 feet as it sends down data on wind and temperature.

"At those same hours other baloons are sent up at hundreds of weather stations around the globe," said Jacobs.

"Thus we get an instantaneous picture of the atmosphere throughout the world.

"The balloons stay aloft 1½ to 2 hours, then expand and burst. Sometimes one of them will fall into our ammunition area — and then there's a little excitement."

About 150 feet off the runway Jacobs has an air-conditioned, glass-walled observation shack which he describes as one of the most modern installations in Southeast Asia.

"It operates as the weather does — 24 hours a day," he said. "We send out hourly reports regularly, but sometimes as often as every 10 minutes."

Now, about those mysterious monsoons.

Most people think South Viet Nam has two seasons: The dry season, when the country is like an arid desert, and the monsoon season, when the skies open and flood down rain in torrents for six months.

The Viet Cong are supposed to welcome the monsoon season, because the bad weather keeps our fighter planes down and they can attack us with less risk of punishing air strikes.

Well, it isn't quite that simple.

"In a tropical climate such as this we can expect an afternoon rain in any part of the country at any time of the year, including the so-called dry season," explained the meterologist.

"The word monsoon merely means weather caused by winds. There are two monsoons, not one.

"In the summer monsoon the winds blow from the southwest and it rains heavily around Saigon and the delta region.

"But by the time the winds reach Da Nang, several hundred miles to the north, the mountains have wrung out most of their moisture. So it is comparatively dry up here."

"During the winter monsoon the situation is reversed. The winds blow from the northeast and dump heavy rains on Da Nang and smaller amounts of moisture around Saigon.

"But throughout the entire country some rain normally falls in every month of the year."

That means, whenever stormy weather appears, the enemy can plan a surprise attack in any part of South Viet Nam at any season, and they do.

Any questions about monsoons? If so, please address them to Capt. Jacobs.

Well water is often used as a practical and inexpensive means of air conditioning.

We are living in what, thanks to the absence of a shooting war between any major powers, automatically earns the title of peacetime.

But though the world is in no immediate danger of dying from a nuclear heart attack, it has broken out with a rash of measles, says Harlan Cleveland, assistant secretary of state for international organization affairs.

There are (or were, as of the time he spoke), 49 little wars, guerrilla campaigns and border disputes currently going on around the world.

One reason, he says, is the nuclear stalemate; war between the big powers has become unthinkable. Add to this situation the emergence of scores of new, independent nations in Asia and Africa and the spreading of the idea, which the United States has encouraged, that every country has the right to determine its own destiny.

With the fear of nuclear war inhibiting the big powers from keeping the small ones in line as they once did, the result has been a series of minor disputes.

"It seems," says Cleveland, "that the alternative to a world war is a world full of wars."

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

There have been six governments in the four years since the assassination of Trujillo in May, 1961. The third government was headed by Juan Bosch. A workable anti - Communist government is yet to be established in Santo Domingo.

U. S. aid was not available for the Dominicans until after Trujillo was deposed. In 16 years from 1946 to 1962 the U. S. gave the Trujillo government a token aid totalling 3 million dollars.

After Trujillo was deposed aid jumped to 35 million dollars in 1962. When Bosch came to power early in 1963, aid was boosted to 51.6 million dollars in that year and The Dominican Republic was to be made a showcase for Alliance for Progress. In 1964, after Bosch was deposed, aid was reduced to 13.7 million dollars.

Trujillo was bad because he was a dictator. However, he was friendly to the United States. Without charge he made sites available to the U. S. for air bases and other needed activities. In addition to opposing Communism in Santo Domingo he actively combatted Communist infiltration throughout Latin America.

At the start of the recent riots in Santo Domingo, had there not been well-informed anti-Communists on the scene to sound a warning, and had not our courageous President moved as quickly as he did there would have already been another Cuba and another pro - Communist dictator installed in this hemisphere. We failed to follow the advice of those who sounded the warning and must soon determine who we can safely trust.

There are other places in Latin America where similar explosions may occur. The same day our marines landed in Santo Domingo a revolution had reportedly been scheduled in a Central American republic. President Johnson's quick reaction to the Santo Domingo danger apparently deferred it. HLH

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — When the Gemini astronauts were transferred all the way from the Florida coast where the Wasp docked to Houston, half-way across the continent, most people missed the personal reason why.

Cape Kennedy, formerly Cape Canaveral, built on the Florida sands with many headaches, heartaches, and several billion dollars, suddenly found itself playing second fiddle to Houston. The motels were emptied, the automobile rental agencies faced difficulties, the area around Cape Kennedy slumped.

The credit — or blame — for this does not go to the Texan in the White House but to the persistence and power of one congressman — Rep. Albert Thomas, Democrat, of Houston.

Thomas occupies the strategic position of No. 2 Democrat on the House Appropriations Committee and has used that power to switch government contract after contract to Houston until he has helped make that city one of the most prosperous in the nation.

In latter months, Congressman Thomas has been a pathetic physical figure. His body ridden with cancer, he has sometimes not been able to rise from his chair at committee meetings. He is helped to his feet and escorted out of the room at the hearings close.

Cancer has been with him for some time and he has been subjected to heavy doses of cobalt. The ordinary person would have retired long ago. But Thomas has hung on, determined to continue his domination over the committee which partially controls the purse-strings of the nation. Last December he flew back to Houston in a special airplane for further treatments, and was not expected to return. However, he continues on the job.

And the big celebration in Houston, plus the transfer of space activities from Cape Kennedy to Houston, is a tribute to his persistence, his congressional seniority, and his personal, persnickety, political power.

—POWER OF COMMITTEE CHAIRMEN—

Thomas's power also illustrates the battle upcoming between the first Southern president in 100 years and committee chairmen, chiefly elected from the South. Thomas of Houston has long battled for the supremacy of Congress over the White House, insisted on attaching to his appropriation bills provisions requiring the executive to come back to Congress on various petty building projects which required months, even years of delay.

Last week another Southern committee chairman, Mendel Rivers of South Carolina, suddenly moved to hamstring the White House by inserting an amendment in the military construction bill preventing the executive from closing military bases without the permission of the House and Senate Armed Services Committees. Every congressman, of course, demands that military bases be kept going in his district.

This is a battle which dates back to the days of Herbert Hoover, who proposed closing the old Indian forts of the Far West. He got such a howl from Congress that most of them remained open.

Ironically, the challenge to President Johnson on bases has come from Rivers of South Carolina, an alcoholic, whom his committee colleagues have urged to stay on the wagon at least long enough to win this fight with the first Southern president in 100 years.

—RESHAPING NEW YORK—

Back in 1954, Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. was urged by Teddy Kheel, the labor mediator, Debs Meyers, the PR man to Mayor Wagner, and David Karr, who used to work for me, to run for mayor of New York. He declined, called the mayoralty a dead end street, ran for attorney general of New York instead, and got beat.

Today Franklin is available to run for the job he previously didn't want and, if he does run, it will reshape political history on two fronts. They are:

Front No. 1 — will be a religious battle. For no Democratic Protestant has been elected mayor of New York in this century. New York mayors have been Catholics.

At present, Democratic forces are maneuvering to nominate District Attorney Frank Hogan, able and popular but who doesn't want to run; or Frank O'Connor, Queens district attorney; or Deputy Mayor Ed Cavanaugh, whose sister, Barbara, Mayor Wagner expects to marry.

Front No. 2 — will be a grab for political power by the Kennedy Clan, using FDR Jr. as the front man. This will spotlight the poorly-concealed rivalry between the Kennedy brothers and the Johnson-Humphrey axis.

It will also remind the public that it was FDR Jr. who gave Hubert Humphrey the unkindest cut of all in the West Virginia primary against John F. Kennedy by criticizing his war record.

As Undersecretary of Commerce, FDR Jr. had some reason to hope that Johnson would promote him to the Cabinet after Luther Hodges retired as Secretary of Commerce. He didn't.

At any rate, Franklin will now be Bobby Kennedy's candidate for mayor of New York. He also has the backing of the No. 1 power in Harlem, Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, and the old boss of the Bronx, ex-congressman Charley Buckley.

With a glamorous name, the solid backing of Negro voters, and heavy support from Jewish voters, FDR Jr. might be able to overcome the anti-Protestant precedent.

Whether he does or not, and whether he beats Rep. John Lindsay, able liberal Republican, for mayor, Bobby Kennedy will step into fill the political vacuum left by the exit of Bob Wagner as mayor of New York. His retirement is a leg up toward putting another Kennedy in the White House.

—DIRKSEN AND THE DRUG COMPANIES—

If you want an explanation of why gnarled, grizzled Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen, the Senate Republican leader, has been devout in battling for the big drug companies, take a look at his campaign contributions. They are most revealing.

When the late Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee was drafting a drug bill, it was the Senator from Illinois who blocked him at every turn of the road. He used delaying tactics inside the Senate Judiciary Committee. He fought Kefauver in public hearings. He fought him on the Senate floor. It was only the shocking scandal of thalidomide, a drug which when taken by pregnant women produced malformed babies, which finally helped Kefauver defeat Dirksen's blocking tactics.

If you take a look through the musty files of the Secretary of the U.S. Senate, you will find that Dirksen received more contributions from executives of drug companies than any other Senator.

Here is a list of his benefactors:

J. M. Olin and Spencer T. Olin, executives of Squibb & Sons, $1,000 each; E. Clifford Upjohn of the Upjohn Drug Company, $250; D. Mead Johnson of Mead Johnson & Co., $1,000.

The members of G. D. Searle & Co., makers of Enovid, an oral contraceptive, were most generous. Members of the family contributed as follows: William L. Searle, $400; Daniel C. Searle, $400; John G. Searle, $500; Suzanne Searle, $400.

Philip B. Hofman, chairman of Johnson & Johnson, gave Dirksen only $100.

W. C. Conner, president of Alcon Laboratories and chairman of Conal Pharmaceuticals, Inc., also was on the stingy side. He coughed up only $100.

But Alfred E. Driscoll, former governor of New Jersey, head of Warner - Lambert Pharmaceutical Co., was more generous. He contributed $500.

These are only part of the $92,004.11 total of receipts chalked up by the Senator from Illinois to help his re-election. He spent a total of $154,457.77 but did not say whom the balance came from, since $66,633.07 was brought in by a fund-raising dinner.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Tuesday, June 15 Lloyd R. Waste invents paper bearing his name.

* * *

One of the ways to stay happier is to avoid an around-the-world trip.

The poverty one sees in India and other undeveloped countries defies accurate description. The squalor in which many poor people live in foreign countries is almost unbelievable. Ignorance is universal and sanitation is not existent. Superstition rules the lives of millions of miserable people.

What then is the world's greatest problem? There are so many problems that this thought is almost overwhelming in its implications.

A scholar, who has been a missionary to China, a preacher, a teacher and a civic leader in this country, described population as the greatest problem. Accurately it should be called overpopulation. The teeming masses of Asia made a profound impression on this wise and intelligent man.

Another great humanitarian, Dr. Albert Sabin, who developed the oral polio vaccine, says that the world's greatest menace is misery and poverty. While menace and problem are different words, misery and poverty certainly are both.

Dr. Salk's observation required a certain amount of detachment because his efforts now are devoted to cancer research. Cancer as one of the principal killers of humans also is entitled to high ranking as a problem even though Dr. Salk rates misery and poverty as bigger menaces.

He called in a Cincinnati speech for a global war on poverty.

"The countries of the East and West should cease fighting among themselves and join in a program to eliminate poverty and illiteracy," he said.

This brings up another world problem -- war. Through the ages it has been a major problem to humanity.

There is an inter-relationship between all the world's major problems -- certainly of all of those mentioned here.

How will they be solved.

Through education, of course, and not through formal education alone. Formal education helps but real education continues after school days are over.

Education can help produce more intelligent solutions but it alone is not enough.

The educated man must not only give his best thought to solving the problems but his reaction must be active and not passive. He must be willing to work to achieve the solutions that he has in mind.

The answer is think, work, act. No problem anywhere is ever solved except with these ingredients.

To our way of thinking the fellow who invented the little paperbound books deserves a place in history right alongside Thomas Alva Edison, who invented the light bulb; Alexander Graham Bell, who discovered the telephone, and the fellows who invented compound interest and discovered night baseball.

The highly disposable paperbacks have revolutionized reading habits and freed thousands of square feet in homes for such higher priority activities as cocktail parties and family fights.

The savings to home owners in space, once consumed by library shelves and heavy cloth and leather bound volumes, can only be reckoned in millions of dollars. A fortune also is being saved in maintenance and dusting the homes through the years and of hauling the books to the city dump when the old man died.

Nobody has ever been discovered who wanted all the books, which once cluttered up houses, except other libraries, which by accepting them only perpetuated the problem of keeping and maintaining them. Nobody wants to read them.

The paperbound books often are cloaked in a sexy cover, which in no way is descriptive of the drab contents inside. This encourages reading, which is not a bad thing.

The interest in literature and how to do a million and one things has been greatly stimulated by these little volumes, which are priced within the reach of everyone.

When a fellow gets through reading a paperbound book he leaves it on a bus or plane seat or in some other public place or just chucks it. They are light in weight, easy to carry in the hand, purse or pocket.

One thing is missing. Modern readers don't look as intelligent as they once did. Although reading has been made more convenient and less expensive it is no longer possible to pose for pictures in front of the library.

Guests aren't given the opportunity to gauge the intelligence of their hosts by counting the books and reading their titles, on the home library shelves standing row on row.

There was a time when erudition could be judged by the number of books on the shelves. Now all appraisals of educational and literary attainment must be made on the basis on how big a bonfire can be built in the back yard.

This gives substance to the old saying that where there is smoke there is bound to be fire.

Anyway books are like money. In the end you can't take 'em with you.

OUR NEGLECTED OLDSTERS

In a youth-oriented society, the problems of the elderly can too easily be put aside. That the aged do have troubles can be seen in government statistics which show that six million Americans over age 65 have incomes of less than $2,000 a year. Hearings on poverty among the elderly open on Wednesday, June 16, before the Senate Special Committee on Aging.

Chairman George A. Smathers (D Fla.) has said that despite efforts to date, "retirement for too many Americans is a one-way ticket to hopelessness." He is concerned because federal War on Poverty programs seem to be aimed at helping young people and give insufficient attention to those in voluntary or enforced retirement. He believes a special Job Corps program for retraining elderly men and women would yield big benefits for the nation.

Congress already is in the final stages of action on an administration - backed bill, the Older Americans Act of 1965, to create an "Administration on Aging" in the Health, Education and Welfare Department. The legislation would authorize $17.5 million over the next two years for grants to states and to public and private non-profit organizations to develop programs for the welfare of the aged. There is a certain sense of urgency behind this; 18 million Americans now are over age 65 and their numbers are increasing at the rate of 1,000 a day.

BOYCOTTING MEDICARE

The American Medical Association has bought 30 minutes of prime evening time on the ABC-TV network for Thursday (June 17) to argue against medicare. Beginning Sunday (June 20), about 25,000 physicians are expected at the four-day annual meeting of the A.M.A. in New York City.

THIS MAY BE the last convention of the American Medical Association at which the principle of medicare is the burning issue. So doctors can be excused for making the most of their terminal opportunity. As part of the final agony, efforts will be made to get approval for a nationwide physician boycott of the imminent program of medical insurance for the aged under social security.

So far, five of the 50 state medical associations have adopted resolutions urging physicians and surgeons not to participate in the medicare program when it finally becomes law. The five are the associations of Arizona, Florida, Louisiana, Ohio and Texas. Representatives from these states will be carrying their torch into the A.M.A.'s House of Delegates.

IT IS FAR from certain, however, that the 250-member policy making body will advise physicians to follow the well-trod path of non-violent non-cooperation. A.M.A. President Dr. Donovan Ward has urged state and local medical groups to defer any boycott resolutions until medicare actually becomes law. Significantly, the U.S. Senate won't take up the House-passed measure until July -- well after the A.M.A.'s annual meeting.

The New England Journal of Medicine cautions physicians against a no-surrender policy. It compares a medicare boycott to "demanding that the crew of a vessel go down with its ship." The A.M.A's "stubborn rear-guard action" in opposition to medicare, the journal declared, may actually be helping the legislation toward enactment.

Questions always arise as to whether any trade or professional association can assume to speak for the majority. Dr. Ivan L. Bennett, Jr., chief pathologist of the Johns Hopkins Medical School and Hospital, states that individual doctors "stay away from their societies' meetings in droves." This leaves matters to leaders who Bennett charges "have shown through the years an abiding faith in the belief that what is good for the doctor -- financially -- is good for the country."

BUT A SURVEY of scores of physicians from coast to coast by the Wall Street Journal disclosed that roughly 25 per cent intend to stay out of the medicare program. A few physicians even said they would not accept new patients coming to them under the program.

The most obvious form of non-cooperation would be refusal to fill out medical claims forms. A patient would then have to pay his bill out of his own pocket and file a claim for reimbursement with the medicare insurer. Administrative chaos still could result if the doctor refused to provide the patient with a statement as to the precise nature of the services rendered.

Non-participation by doctors is entirely legal under the medicare bill as now written. Nor can non-participation be assailed ethically under A.M.A. codes. They give the physician the right to "choose whom he will serve."

Many observers believe the boycott agitation is nothing more than a temporary means of release for emotions stirred by fears of socialized medicine. Some physicians once vowed to refuse participation in Blue Cross plans, when private health insurance was an innovation.

THE MOST PRECIOUS RIGHT

Civil rights is an overriding issue in America.

The right to the vote, to education, to equal accommodations is demanded not only by minorities, but by a sympathetic federal government.

At the same time, there is a cruel irony in this land of freedom. The United States is one of the few nations in the world with compulsory unionism -- where a man has to join a union to keep his job.

True, the right to work without joining a union still exists in 19 states. But it is under severe attack. The Johnson Administration wants to repeal the section of federal law which permits the states to preserve this freedom.

The right to vote or be admitted to the fanciest restaurant in town is little consolation to the worker of any race if he has no job. Other rights won't feed or clothe or house his wife and family if he has lost his most precious right -- the right to work. -- Nation's Business.

The Missouri State Highway Patrol investigated 25,998 rural traffic accidents last year. Some of the people involved in these accidents were under the impression that the trooper's accident report was all that was required. This was not true in many cases.

The Safety Responsibility Law of Missouri requires the operator, or owner of every vehicle involved in an accident to file a written report within ten days to the Department of Revenue when the accident results in death or injury or when damage to property of any one person exceeds $100. This applies to every operator involved in an accident, regardless of who is to blame. If there is any doubt as to the amount of property damage, it is best to send in a report. Failure to comply with this law is punishable by suspension of one's driving license and fine up to $500.

Under the Safety Responsibility Law both the operator's and owner's driving license and registration certificate, as well as their automobile license plates, can be suspended. Withing 45 days after receiving a report of an accident, the Department of Revenue must enforce suspension unless it has received satisfactory evidence that the operator, or the owner has met his financial responsibility.

Colonel Hugh H. Waggoner, the Superintendent of the Missouri Highway Patrol, said: "The Safety Responsibility Law was enacted to protect everyone in Missouri against financially irresponsible owners and operators of motor vehicles who become involved in accidents. It also promotes street and highway safety by allowing the State to remove drivers from behind the wheel who habitually cause accidents."

The official forms required to be submitted under the Safety Responsibility Law may be obtained from any branch office of the Department of Revenue, from any Motor Vehicle Registration office, from members of the State Highway Patrol, and from other law enforcement officials. The reports filed with the Department of Revenue are confidential and cannot be used in civil court.

We are living in what, thanks to the absence of a shooting war between any major powers, automatically earns the title of peacetime.

But though the world is in no immediate danger of dying from a nuclear heart attack, it has broken out with a rash of measles, says Harlan Cleveland, assistant secretary of state for international organization affairs.

There are (or were, as of the time he spoke), 49 little wars, guerrilla campaigns and border disputes currently going on around the world.

One reason, he says, is the nuclear stalemate; war between the big powers has become unthinkable. Add to this situation the emergence of scores of new, independent nations in Asia and Africa and the spreading of the idea, which the United States has encouraged, that every country has the right to determine its own destiny.

With the fear of nuclear war inhibiting the big powers from keeping the small ones in line as they once did, the result has been a series of minor disputes.

"It seems," says Cleveland, "that the alternative to a world war is a world full of wars."

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

There have been six governments in the four years since the assassination of Trujillo in May, 1961. The third government was headed by Juan Bosch. A workable anti - Communist government is yet to be established in Santo Domingo.

U. S. aid was not available for the Dominicans until after Trujillo was deposed. In 16 years from 1946 to 1962 the U. S. gave the Trujillo government a token aid totalling 3 million dollars.

After Trujillo was deposed aid jumped to 35 million dollars in 1962. When Bosch came to power early in 1963, aid was boosted to 51.6 million dollars in that year and The Dominican Republic was to be made a showcase for Alliance for Progress. In 1964, after Bosch was deposed, aid was reduced to 13.7 million dollars.

Trujillo was bad because he was a dictator. However, he was friendly to the United States. Without charge he made sites available to the U. S. for air bases and other needed activities. In addition to opposing Communism in Santo Domingo he actively combatted Communist infiltration throughout Latin America.

At the start of the recent riots in Santo Domingo, had there not been well-informed anti-Communists on the scene to sound a warning, and had not our courageous President moved as quickly as he did there would have already been another Cuba and another pro - Communist dictator installed in this hemisphere. We failed to follow the advice of those who sounded the warning and must soon determine who we can safely trust.

There are other places in Latin America where similar explosions may occur. The same day our marines landed in Santo Domingo a revolution had reportedly been scheduled in a Central American republic. President Johnson's quick reaction to the Santo Domingo danger apparently deferred it. HLH

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP) —Weather is one of the most important words in war.

Every American over here talks about the weather — usually in uncomplimentary terms —but Capt. Norman F. Jacobs is one of the few who does anything about it.

He also can explain the vagaries of the two monsoon seasons over here, which have most people baffled.

As commander of Detachment 9 of the 30th Weather Squadron, Jacobs has a vital role.

In war, both ground and air operations are to a great degree dependent on the weather, and it is his onerous task to predict it accurately as far in advance as possible.

In the operations office of the big Da Nang air base, the captain, 32, who comes from Los Angeles, directs 22 American and Vietnamese Air Force helpers. He also works closely with 20 employes of the nearby Vietnamese civilian weather station.

Every morning and evening at 8 o'clock they send up a large transmitter-carrying balloon which rises to a height of 80,000 feet as it sends down data on wind and temperature.

"At those same hours other baloons are sent up at hundreds of weather stations around the globe," said Jacobs.

"Thus we get an instantaneous picture of the atmosphere throughout the world.

"The balloons stay aloft 1½ to 2 hours, then expand and burst. Sometimes one of them will fall into our ammunition area — and then there's a little excitement."

About 150 feet off the runway Jacobs has an air-conditioned, glass-walled observation shack which he describes as one of the most modern installations in Southeast Asia.

"It operates as the weather does — 24 hours a day," he said. "We send out hourly reports regularly, but sometimes as often as every 10 minutes."

Now, about those mysterious monsoons.

Most people think South Viet Nam has two seasons: The dry season, when the country is like an arid desert, and the monsoon season, when the skies open and flood down rain in torrents for six months.

The Viet Cong are supposed to welcome the monsoon season, because the bad weather keeps our fighter planes down and they can attack us with less risk of punishing air strikes.

Well, it isn't quite that simple.

"In a tropical climate such as this we can expect an afternoon rain in any part of the country at any time of the year, including the so-called dry season," explained the meterologist.

"The word monsoon merely means weather caused by winds. There are two monsoons, not one.

"In the summer monsoon the winds blow from the southwest and it rains heavily around Saigon and the delta region.

"But by the time the winds reach Da Nang, several hundred miles to the north, the mountains have wrung out most of their moisture. So it is comparatively dry up here."

"During the winter monsoon the situation is reversed. The winds blow from the northeast and dump heavy rains on Da Nang and smaller amounts of moisture around Saigon.

"But throughout the entire country some rain normally falls in every month of the year."

That means, whenever stormy weather appears, the enemy can plan a surprise attack in any part of South Viet Nam at any season, and they do.

Any questions about monsoons? If so, please address them to Capt. Jacobs.

W. C. Conner, president of Alcon Laboratories and chairman of Conal Pharmaceuticals, Inc., also was on the stingy side. He coughed up only $100.

But Alfred E. Driscoll, former governor of New Jersey, head of Warner - Lambert Pharmaceutical Co., was more generous. He contributed $500.

These are only part of the $92,004.11 total of receipts chalked up by the Senator from Illinois to help his re-election. He spent a total of $154,457.77 but did not say whom the balance came from, since $66,633.07 was brought in by a fund-raising dinner.

MARRIED LAWYERS

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP) — Two lawyers in the family don't pose as many problems as one might expect, says Bill Marschall, one of the Texas Jaycee's Five Outstanding Young Men.

Speaking of his wife, Pat, who is an attorney in her own right, Marschall says, "Most of the time it's an asset, because we can take an interest in each other's work."

"It led to some pretty hot discussions at home."

The Marschalls have two small daughters now who are getting more attention from Mrs. Marschall than the legal profession. She still works a few hours a day and will return to full practice when the children grow older.

Cards Drop Pirates 5 to 2

Taylor Stars In Relief

Two unearned runs and strong relief pitching pushed the Cardinals to a 5-2 victory Monday night at St. Louis over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The score was tied at 2-2 in the fifth inning when Pirate shortstop Gene Alley allowed a grounder to get through scoring Julien Javier. Left fielder Bob Bailey then bobbled the ball and Bill White also raced home.

St. Louis picked up its final run in the sixth on three singles and another error by Alley.

Ron Taylor took over for rookie Steve Carlton in the fifth and allowed only two hits the rest of the way. Taylor received credit for the victory, his second against one loss. Bob Veale was the Pirate loser.

It was announced after the game that Taylor had been traded to Houston for lefthander Hal Woodeshick. The Astros and Cards also swapped a couple of minor league pitchers.

Kansas City was idle Monday and returns to action tonight against the Los Angeles Angels. Diego Segui will start for the A's in Municipal Stadium against Marcelino Lopez of the Angels.

Ray Sadecki will get another starting chance tonight for the Cards against Pittsburgh and Don Cardwell. Sadecki, a 20-game winner last year, has managed only a 2-6 mark this season and has been hit heavily.

Taylor To Astros For Woodeshick

ST. LOUIS AP -- Ron Taylor left the St. Louis Cardinals laughing, the Pittsburgh Pirates moaning and the Houston Astros waiting anxiously for his arrival.

The right - handed reliever pitched the Cardinals to a 5-2 victory over the Pirates Monday night with 4 2-3 innings of shutout pitching. Moments after the game, word went out that he had been traded to the Astros for left-handed reliever Hal Woodeshick.

"I feel better about leaving this way - helping the team," Taylor said after his finest stint of the season. "Red Manager Red Schoendienst called me into his office and told me after the game."

Before Monday night's victory, Taylor had a 1-1 record. He had pitched 39 innings in 24 games and given up 22 earned runs for a 5.08 earned run average.

Taylor, 28, was 8-4 last season and played a big role in the Cardinals' pennant drive.

Woodeshick, 32, had his big year in 1963 when he was 11-9, with a 1.97 ERA and saved numerous games for the Astros. His record sank to 2-9 last season, but he had an ERA of 2.77 and still was Houston's ace in the bullpen. In 27 games this season, he is 3-4 with a 3.09 ERA.

The Cardinals also acquired right-hander Chuck Taylor, 22, from Houston's Amarillo farm club in return for left-hander Mike Cuellar, 28, of St. Louis' Jacksonville team. The two pitchers will switch teams.

N.F.L. And A.F.L. Fight For Atlanta

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK AP -- Pete Rozelle is marshaling his National Football League forces for the mighty battle of Atlanta against the American Football League.

Chances are the NFL's adroit commissioner will muster the support he needs from the league's top echelon. And chances are his masterly finessing for the prized Dixie territory will pay off in victory.

Rozelle, who stepped in at the 11th hour to foil a possible uncontested grab of Atlanta by the AFL, has about two weeks to get the necessary backing from his 14 team owners to award a franchise to the Southern stronghold. Twelve yes votes will swing it, and the trend definitely is yes.

As Associated Press survey showed today that seven NFL clubs are on record as favoring the move into Atlanta in 1966.

They are the Baltimore Colts, Cleveland Browns, Dallas Cowboys, Detroit Lions, Minnesota Vikings, Philadelphia Eagles and Pittsburgh Steelers.

Owners of four other clubs -- the New York Giants, St. Louis Cardinals, Los Angeles Rams and Washington Senators -- were not ready to commit themselves. And bosses of the Green Bay Packers, Chicago Bears and San Francisco 49ers were not available for comment.

There were no hints of a dissenting voice in the poll.

Should Rozelle be given the go-ahead, the next step would be to award the franchinse -- most likely to a syndicate headed by Lindsey Hopkins, an affluent Atlantan, and including Texas oilman John Mecom Jr. and Tony Hulman, who runs the Indianapolis Speedway.

Then would come the vital development -- choosing a pro football tenant for Atlanta's imposing new $18 - million stadium.

The AFL gave a franchise to the Cox Broadcasting Corp. of Atlanta last week, apparently under the impression the stadium was set. But after a pitch by Rozelle, the stadium authority announced it would not name a pro football tenant before July 1.

That gave Rozelle the time he needs to make a crash survey of the prospects, report to his owners, and take a vote.

Insiders feel the vote will be for expansion into Atlanta -- and that, given the choice, Atlanta will go for the NFL.

Maloney Hurls No Hitter, Loses

By DON BANDY

CINCINNATI (AP) —"That's baseball I guess," Jim Maloney said softly. "I can't compare this game to any other. It's by far the best I've ever pitched."

Maloney was slumped in his chair. He couldn't recall exactly how it felt to lose after pitching 10 innings of no-hit baseball Monday night against the New York Mets.

The no-hitter came to a sudden halt in the top of the 11th when giant-killer Johnny Lewis, a .250 hitter, slugged a towering home run that gave New York a 1-0 victory over Maloney and the Cincinnati Reds.

Maloney's astonishing performance goes into the record books as 10-inning no-hitter. The 25-year-old fireballing right-hander wound up with a two-hitter as the Mets' Roy McMillan cracked a single moments after the home run.

"Lewis hit a fast ball," Maloney said quietly, the sweat pouring off his overworked body. "I was just trying to keep the ball in on him and it got out just a little bit.

"He hit the same kind of pitch for a homer off me the last time the Mets were here."

What was going through Maloney's mind as the game wore on?

"I knew I had a no-hitter going and I wanted to pitch a no-hitter," he explained.

"That's what I try to do every time I start."

Maloney then lifted himself painfully from the chair, headed to the showers, but said over his shoulder:

"I'd just as soon win ball games as pitch a no-hitter."

Maloney has flirted with no-hit fame before, pitching three one-hitters. In his first start this year, April 19 against Milwaukee, he gave up just one hit, a single in the eighth to Denis Menke.

Last year, the Fresno, Calif., native pitched a one - hitter against the Mets, and in 1963 he hurled a one-hitter against the Chicago Cubs.

Maloney joins nine other pitchers who have hurled at least nine innings of no-hit ball, but then lost in extra innings.

Maloney did tie a National League strikeout record for an extra-inning game. He fanned 18 to equal the number Warren Spahn, then with the Braves, struck out in 15 innings against Chicago in 1952. Spahn is now with the Mets.

Three of Maloney's strikeouts came at the expense of Lewis, the Mets' right fielder. But in the 11th, Lewis eyed a 2-1 pitch, and slammed it against a center-field extension, just a few feet above the home-run line.

Half of Lewis' round-trippers have been against Cincinnati pitchers, and two of them also helped the Mets beat the Reds in two other games.

"I can't help but feel good," Lewis said. "But it was a heartbreaker for Maloney to lose. He threw good, real good. In fact, I never saw a pitcher throw as hard to me as Maloney did."

The homer didn't appear to shake up Maloney on the mound. He continued throwing hard and struck out Ron Swoboda. Then McMillan lasheda single to center. Maloney ended the inning by getting Jesse Gonder to hit into a double play. But the damage had been done.

Cincinnati made a vain try in its half of the 11th. Frank Robinson singled after two outs, but was stranded as Gordy Coleman grounded out.

Mauch To Lead N.L. In All-Star Game

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies finished in a second-place tie last season, but their manager, Gene Mauch, has been placed in charge of the National League All-Star team.

League President Warren C. Giles announced Mauch's appointment Monday and said the American League manager will be named later this week.

The annual game between the All-Stars will be held July 13 at Minneapolis - St. Paul.

It has been baseball tradition that the managers of the two pennant-winning clubs will be in charge of the next year's All-Star teams, but both the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees managers left their jobs after the 1964 World Series.

Johnny Keane, who led St. Louis to its first world championship since 1946, is now manager of the Yankees. Yogi Berra, who managed the Yankees last year, is a coach with the New York Mets.

Taylor To Astros For Woodeshick

ST. LOUIS AP -- Ron Taylor left the St. Louis Cardinals laughing, the Pittsburgh Pirates moaning and the Houston Astros waiting anxiously for his arrival.

The right - handed reliever pitched the Cardinals to a 5-2 victory over the Pirates Monday night with 4 2-3 innings of shutout pitching. Moments after the game, word went out that he had been traded to the Astros for left-handed reliever Hal Woodeshick.

"I feel better about leaving this way - helping the team," Taylor said after his finest stint of the season. "Red Manager Red Schoendienst called me into his office and told me after the game."

Before Monday night's victory, Taylor had a 1-1 record. He had pitched 39 innings in 24 games and given up 22 earned runs for a 5.08 earned run average.

Taylor, 28, was 8-4 last season and played a big role in the Cardinals' pennant drive.

Woodeshick, 32, had his big year in 1963 when he was 11-9, with a 1.97 ERA and saved numerous games for the Astros. His record sank to 2-9 last season, but he had an ERA of 2.77 and still was Houston's ace in the bullpen. In 27 games this season, he is 3-4 with a 3.09 ERA.

The Cardinals also acquired right-hander Chuck Taylor, 22, from Houston's Amarillo farm club in return for left-hander Mike Cuellar, 28, of St. Louis' Jacksonville team. The two pitchers will switch teams.

N.F.L. And A.F.L. Fight For Atlanta

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK AP -- Pete Rozelle is marshaling his National Football League forces for the mighty battle of Atlanta against the American Football League.

Chances are the NFL's adroit commissioner will muster the support he needs from the league's top echelon. And chances are his masterly finessing for the prized Dixie territory will pay off in victory.

Rozelle, who stepped in at the 11th hour to foil a possible uncontested grab of Atlanta by the AFL, has about two weeks to get the necessary backing from his 14 team owners to award a franchise to the Southern stronghold. Twelve yes votes will swing it, and the trend definitely is yes.

As Associated Press survey showed today that seven NFL clubs are on record as favoring the move into Atlanta in 1966.

They are the Baltimore Colts, Cleveland Browns, Dallas Cowboys, Detroit Lions, Minnesota Vikings, Philadelphia Eagles and Pittsburgh Steelers.

Owners of four other clubs--the New York Giants, St. Louis Cardinals, Los Angeles Rams and Washington Senators -- were not ready to commit themselves. And bosses of the Green Bay Packers, Chicago Bears and San Francisco 49ers were not available for comment.

There were no hints of a dissenting voice in the poll.

Should Rozelle be given the go-ahead, the next step would be to award the franchise--most likely to a syndicate headed by Lindsey Hopkins, an affluent Atlantan, and including Texas oilman John Mecom Jr. and Tony Hulman, who runs the Indianapolis Speedway.

Then would come the vital development -- choosing a pro football tenant for Atlanta's imposing new $18 - million stadium.

The AFL gave a franchise to the Cox Broadcasting Corp. of Atlanta last week, apparently under the impression the stadium was set. But after a pitch by Rozelle, the stadium authority announced it would not name a pro football tenant before July 1.

That gave Rozelle the time he needs to make a crash survey of the prospects, report to his owners, and take a vote.

Insiders feel the vote will be for expansion into Atlanta--and that, given the choice, Atlanta will go for the NFL.

Maloney Hurls No Hitter, Loses

By DON BANDY

CINCINNATI (AP) —"That's baseball I guess," Jim Maloney said softly. "I can't compare this game to any other. It's by far the best I've ever pitched."

Maloney was slumped in his chair. He couldn't recall exactly how it felt to lose after pitching 10 innings of no-hit baseball Monday night against the New York Mets.

The no-hitter came to a sudden halt in the top of the 11th when giant-killer Johnny Lewis, a .250 hitter, slugged a towering home run that gave New York a 1-0 victory over Maloney and the Cincinnati Reds.

Maloney's astonishing performance goes into the record books as 10-inning no-hitter. The 25-year-old fireballing right-hander wound up with a two-hitter as the Mets' Roy McMillan cracked a single moments after the home run.

"Lewis hit a fast ball," Maloney said quietly, the sweat pouring off his overworked body. "I was just trying to keep the ball in on him and it got out just a little bit.

"He hit the same kind of pitch for a homer off me the last time the Mets were here."

What was going through Maloney's mind as the game wore on?

"I knew I had a no-hitter going and I wanted to pitch a no-hitter," he explained.

"That's what I try to do every time I start."

Maloney then lifted himself painfully from the chair, headed to the showers, but said over his shoulder:

"I'd just as soon win ball games as pitch a no-hitter."

Maloney has flirted with no-hit fame before, pitching three one-hitters. In his first start this year, April 19 against Milwaukee, he gave up just one hit, a single in the eighth to Denis Menke.

Last year, the Fresno, Calif., native pitched a one - hitter against the Mets, and in 1963 he hurled a one-hitter against the Chicago Cubs.

Maloney joins nine other pitchers who have hurled at least nine innings of no-hit ball, but then lost in extra innings.

Maloney did tie a National League strikeout record for an extra-inning game. He fanned 18 to equal the number Warren Spahn, then with the Braves, struck out in 15 innings against Chicago in 1952. Spahn is now with the Mets.

Three of Maloney's strikeouts came at the expense of Lewis, the Mets' right fielder. But in the 11th, Lewis eyeda 2-1 pitch, and slammed it against a center-field extension, just a few feet above the home-run line.

Half of Lewis' round-trippers have been against Cincinnati pitchers, and two of them also helped the Mets beat the Reds in two other games.

"I can't help but feel good," Lewis said. "But it was a heartbreaker for Maloney to lose. He threw good, real good. In fact, I never saw a pitcher throw as hard to me as Maloney did."

The homer didn't appear to shake up Maloney on the mound. He continued throwing hard and struck out Ron Swoboda. Then McMillan lasheda single to center. Maloney ended the inning by getting Jesse Gonder to hit into a double play. But the damage had been done.

Cincinnati made a vain try in its half of the 11th. Frank Robinson singled after two outs, but was stranded as Gordy Coleman grounded out.

Mauch To Lead N.L. In All-Star Game

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies finished in a second-place tie last season, but their manager, Gene Mauch, has been placed in charge of the National League All-Star team.

League President Warren C. Giles announced Mauch's appointment Monday and said the American League manager will be named later this week.

The annual game between the All-Stars will be held July 13 at Minneapolis - St. Paul.

It has been baseball tradition that the managers of the two pennant-winning clubs will be in charge of the next year's All-Star teams, but both the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees managers left their jobs after the 1964 World Series.

Johnny Keane, who led St. Louis to its first world championship since 1946, is now manager of the Yankees. Yogi Berra, who managed the Yankees last year, is a coach with the New York Mets.

FORT SCOTT, Kan. AP--Teddy Sweets, 5-11, 225-pound Fort Scott Junior College back, announced Monday he had signed to play professional football next season with the Toronto Rifles.

Sweets, who came to Fort Scott from Butler, Mo., High School, led rushers in the Jayhawk Junior College Conference last season with 922 yards.

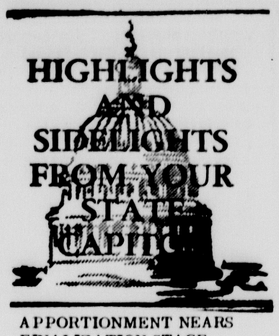
Today is June 14, Flag Day. Traditionally, we Americans have displayed outside our homes and places of business the Stars and Stripes of the United States of America -- to say, in effect, "America, how proud of you are we and how grateful for your promise of freedom to our children." My husband and I bought our flag when we were first married, before our children were born. The flag is put up in the morning and taken down at night and folded according to specifications and never allowed to touch the ground. Now the older two children are being taught the Pledge of Allegiance, although they are still too young to pronounce all the words correctly. Sometimes we forget to raise the flag on one holiday or another, and on those days, when I realize my neglect, I feel a pang of regret that I have failed to do one of the small things that shows pride and allegiance to my country. Most places of business and all government offices still display the colors on specified days, but what has happened to the individual?

Following is a hopefully theoretical account of history of our country -- written perhaps a thousand years from now (or perhaps not so long) by some future student of the ways of man.

"The United States of America -- one of the greatest working republics ever known to man. Born of liberty and died of apathy. Begun at a time when religious and personal freedom were being supressed to the point that man's dignity demanded a land of the free. Always in a country there are those who want to rule too strictly, set the laws of life too explicity and force their own will upon the people. This also began to happen in early America, but freedom reigned through constant struggle and perserverance to the concept that man is able to govern himself in as many aspects of life as are feasible in a civilization. The country and the people grew and prospered -- always in the hearts of all was an immense pride in living in a place so beautiful, so bountiful and so free. What a truly great thing to say 'I am an American; for this I am grateful enough to give daily thanks to my own God, brave enough to lay down my life, and proud enough to display my colors and pledge my allegiance.' People from the world over risked many perils to be able to come to this country and in time to be able to make this statement. But the numbers of the people grew more and the frontiers were won and the people settled down to making the "good life" for themselves. The awsome responsibility of retaining their precious individual freedoms became too heavy a burden; the people began to shift the responsibility to the federal, or central, government. So, over the decades, the power of the government grew and the power of the people diminished. Americans had taken away from them, with almost no protest, the right to pray out loud in their schools; indeed, they seemed not to care about praying for their land of freedom anymore. They became so secure in this land of plenty that they were afraid to risk their gains in war; no matter if the war were to be fought in order to preserve the dignity of man -- all that seemed to matter was the insurance of 'plenty of everything for all.' They dismissed as 'warmongers' those few who were brave enough to even state the necessity of war. Then, out of forgetfulness, lack of pride, selfishness, and some infiltration of opposing forces, people began to leave the national banner in closets on those days when it had long been custom to display the flag. It became a rarity to see a display of the colors by an individual and even cause for ridicule upon those few who did!

"After this great nation fell, few could explain why it did. There were no great wars in which the people of America were subdued by force -- they seemed merely to tire of supporting themselves and proclaiming their duty and honor as citizens. They let themselves be overtaken and governed by a few opportunists. Some cried out in dispair, for they could look beyond the comfortable present to the horror of a future when the once great ideals of the original constitution were so altered as to be forgotten. But they were too few; the voice of the individual could no longer be heard. And the questions remain: Why did those fortunate people cease to care about the preservation of their freedom? Why did they forget the great concepts and the many who died and lived for these ideals? Why did they allow themselves to become that which they originally abhorred?" Question: Who displayed the flag today?

Sincerely
Mrs. Bert H. Rowe, Jr.



APPORTIONMENT NEARS FINALIZATION STAGE

The House has given in and finally reapportioned itself, much to the consternation of some but to the relief of others and the Senate was expected to give a pretty fast okay to primary House proposals.

However, it appears very unlikely that a proposal calling for equal four-year terms for members of the House will ever get off the ground. Another issue in which the House seeks more clerical help probably will be compromised.

On top of all the bitterness surrounding the reapportionment question at the state level is a heap of abuse being hurled at the U. S. Supreme Court for causing all the trouble in issuing its now famous one-man, one-vote edict.

As things now stand, if the people approve the reapportionment question in a special constitutional election, the cities of Missouri (primarily St. Louis and Kansas City) will stand to gain a lapful while much of rural Missouri will more or less be lumped.

It's a common thing to hear around the state Capitol these days, remarks attributed to metropolitan legislators to wit: wait until reapportionment and then see what happens to their pet proposals.

Among these proposals given a good chance for favorable action under a reapportioned legislature are the bitterly-contested school transportation law providing state aid for carrying parochial and private school children to and from class; horse racing with its accompanying pari - mutuel betting, etc.

For many months, one of the staunchest supporters of reapportionment has been Governor Warren E. Hearnes, but some legislators now feel that the governor in the near future will be in for a shock when he receives on his desk for approval such legislation as above.

He will be in an awkward position, indeed, because of his courting of the metropolitan areas. After reapportionment they, logically, will want what they already are considering their due.

As one rural legislator put it: "When that time comes, I wouldn't want to be in his (Hearnes') shoes."

While the reapportionment question appears to be headed for the state-side ballot, the final okay must come through federal court acceptance.

GOVERNMENT LAUNCHES AN 'ANTI-SMOKING' PROGRAM

The state of Missouri, at least on the executive department level, appears to have launched its own private campaign to stamp out office smoking.

Recently placed around many departmental offices were handsome prison-made walnut ash trays which scorch at the touch of a lighted cigaret.

While a few of the wooden ash depositories now bear burn marks (inflicted by the brave) after being around several weeks, most remain unblemished indicating the possibility of a decrease in smoking.

So far, the matter hasn't caused any legislative action nor has any move been initiated to require such ash trays for all smoking state employes.

However, the possibility exists that should they become the vogue, cigaret smokers more than likely would forego the habit (at least while on the job) and climb a few executive walls rather than be charged with malicious destruction of state property.

NYLON COMES OF AGE, KIRKPATRICK REPORTS

Secretary of State James C. (Jimmy) Kirkpatrick is showing signs of becoming one of the hardest working state secretaries Missouri has ever had.

To show that he is keeping tabs on the vast operations under his command, Kirkpatrick recently took note of the fact that one recently - organized Missouri company listed as its reason for being was the manufacturing of nylon shoes for horses.

The Corporations Department, under the Secretary of State's office, is processing an average of 420 new companies per month, Kirkpatrick reported. Among recent additions were four wig manufacturers, along with a host of others.

And, the War on Poverty isn't being overlooked. Since Kirkpatrick took office five and one-half months ago, some 60 economic development corporations have been formed.

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENTS

The General Assembly finally has taken the bull by the horns, after shunting aside the problem for several sessions, and passed legislation to abolish the office of county superintendent of schools where the post is nearly functionless.

Basically, the measure now awaiting action by Governor Hearnes, provides for leaving the office vacant in the two dozen or so counties not now having a superintendent and allowing abolishment in counties having three or less districts.

During the Japanese-Chinese War in 1937, the U.S.S. Mindanao was forced by a blockade to remain anchored in the river off Canton for about six months. The crew standing the deck watches were required to enter the weather conditions during each of their watches in the log. One such entry stated that the sky was clear, with the exception of one cloud directly over the ship. Each entry after that for several months simply repeated the report. What the men didn't know was that the logs were forwarded to Washington.

The captain was startled one day to receive sealed orders from Naval Headquarters. He feverishly tore open the envelope with visions of an important assignment, only to read: "Proceed 500 yards upriver and get out from under that damn cloud." — Ken Lightfoot

Places To Be Approached With Caution

From information received from the offices of the State Highway Commission district offices and the State Highway Patrol it has been learned that there are several places on Southeast Missouri roads that should be approached with caution.

On Interstate Route 55 in Cape Girardeau and Scott counties there is new grading adjacent to pavement at Scott City.

In Stoddard county there is new construction adjacent to Route 25 south and in Dexter and near Bloomfield.

In Missouri county there is new grading adjacent to existing route north of junction or Route 105.

There is grading and bridge work at new location of Interstate Route 55 in New Madrid county. Also in this county there is new grading for bypasses adjacent to Route 61 north and south of New Madrid. Equipment is being used and should be approached accordingly.

Mr. Charles Blanton, II
Editor-in-Chief
Daily Sikeston Standard
Sikeston, Missouri

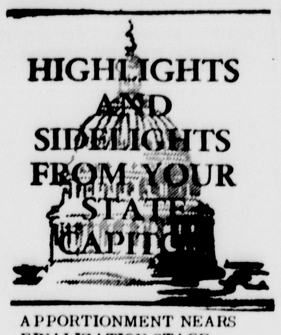
Today is June 14, Flag Day. Traditionally, we Americans have displayed outside our homes and places of business the Stars and Stripes of the United States of America -- to say, in effect, "America, how proud of you are we and how grateful for your promise of freedom to our children." My husband and I bought our flag when we were first married, before our children were born. The flag is put up in the morning and taken down at night and folded according to specifications and never allowed to touch the ground. Now the older two children are being taught the Pledge of Allegiance, although they are still too young to pronounce all the words correctly. Sometimes we forget to raise the flag on one holiday or another, and on those days, when I realize my neglect, I feel a pang of regret that I have failed to do one of the small things that shows pride and allegiance to my country. Most places of business and all government offices still display the colors on specified days, but what has happened to the individual?

Following is a hopefully theoretical account of history of our country -- written perhaps a thousand years from now (or perhaps not so long) by some future student of the ways of man.

"The United States of America -- one of the greatest working republics ever known to man. Born of liberty and died of apathy. Begun at a time when religious and personal freedom were being supressed to the point that man's dignity demanded a land of the free. Always in a country there are those who want to rule too strictly, set the laws of life too explicity and force their own will upon the people. This also began to happen in early America, but freedom reigned through constant struggle and perserverance to the concept that man is able to govern himself in as many aspects of life as are feasible in a civilization. The country and the people grew and prospered -- always in the hearts of all was an immense pride in living in a place so beautiful, so bountiful and so free. What a truly great thing to say 'I am an American; for this I am grateful enough to give daily thanks to my own God, brave enough to lay down my life, and proud enough to display my colors and pledge my allegiance.' People from the world over risked many perils to be able to come to this country and in time to be able to make this statement. But the numbers of the people grew more and the frontiers were won and the people settled down to making the "good life" for themselves. The awsome responsibility of retaining their precious individual freedoms became too heavy a burden; the people began to shift the responsibility to the federal, or central, government. So, over the decades, the power of the government grew and the power of the people diminished. Americans had taken away from them, with almost no protest, the right to pray out loud in their schools; indeed, they seemed not to care about praying for their land of freedom anymore. They became so secure in this land of plenty that they were afraid to risk their gains in war; no matter if the war were to be fought in order to preserve the dignity of man -- all that seemed to matter was the insurance of 'plenty of everything for all.' They dismissed as 'warmongers' those few who were brave enough to even state the necessity of war. Then, out of forgetfulness, lack of pride, selfishness, and some infiltration of opposing forces, people began to leave the national banner in closets on those days when it had long been custom to display the flag. It became a rarity to see a display of the colors by an individual and even cause for ridicule upon those few who did!

"After this great nation fell, few could explain why it did. There were no great wars in which the people of America were subdued by force -- they seemed merely to tire of supporting themselves and proclaiming their duty and honor as citizens. They let themselves be overtaken and governed by a few opportunists. Some cried out in dispair, for they could look beyond the comfortable present to the horror of a future when the once great ideals of the original constitution were so altered as to be forgotten. But they were too few; the voice of the individual could no longer be heard. And the questions remain: Why did those fortunate people cease to care about the preservation of their freedom? Why did they forget the great concepts and the many who died and lived for these ideals? Why did they allow themselves to become that which they originally abhorred?" Question: Who displayed the flag today?

Sincerely
Mrs. Bert H. Rowe, Jr.



APPORTIONMENT NEARS FINALIZATION STAGE

The House has given in and finally reapportioned itself, much to the consternation of some but to the relief of others and the Senate was expected to give a pretty fast okay to primary House proposals.

However, it appears very unlikely that a proposal calling for equal four-year terms for members of the House will ever get off the ground. Another issue in which the House seeks more clerical help probably will be compromised.

On top of all the bitterness surrounding the reapportionment question at the state level is a heap of abuse being hurled at the U. S. Supreme Court for causing all the trouble in issuing its now famous one-man, one-vote edict.

As things now stand, if the people approve the reapportionment question in a special constitutional election, the cities of Missouri (primarily St. Louis and Kansas City) will stand to gain a lapful while much of rural Missouri will more or less be lumped.

It's a common thing to hear around the state Capitol these days, remarks attributed to metropolitan legislators to wit: wait until reapportionment and then see what happens to their pet proposals.

Among these proposals given a good chance for favorable action under a reapportioned legislature are the bitterly-contested school transportation law providing state aid for carrying parochial and private school children to and from class; horse racing with its accompanying pari - mutuel betting, etc.

For many months, one of the staunchest supporters of reapportionment has been Governor Warren E. Hearnes, but some legislators now feel that the governor in the near future will be in for a shock when he receives on his desk for approval such legislation as above.

He will be in an awkward position, indeed, because of his courting of the metropolitan areas. After reapportionment they, logically, will want what they already are considering their due.

As one rural legislator put it: "When that time comes, I wouldn't want to be in his (Hearnes') shoes."

While the reapportionment question appears to be headed for the state-side ballot, the final okay must come through federal court acceptance.

GOVERNMENT LAUNCHES AN 'ANTI-SMOKING' PROGRAM

The state of Missouri, at least on the executive department level, appears to have launched its own private campaign to stamp out office smoking.

Recently placed around many departmental offices were handsome prison-made walnut ash trays which scorch at the touch of a lighted cigaret.

While a few of the wooden ash depositories now bear burn marks (inflicted by the brave) after being around several weeks, most remain unblemished indicating the possibility of a decrease in smoking.

So far, the matter hasn't caused any legislative action nor has any move been initiated to require such ash trays for all smoking state employes.

However, the possibility exists that should they become the vogue, cigaret smokers more than likely would forego the habit (at least while on the job) and climb a few executive walls rather than be charged with malicious destruction of state property.

NYLON COMES OF AGE, KIRKPATRICK REPORTS

Secretary of State James C. (Jimmy) Kirkpatrick is showing signs of becoming one of the hardest working state secretaries Missouri has ever had.

To show that he is keeping tabs on the vast operations under his command, Kirkpatrick recently took note of the fact that one recently - organized Missouri company listed as its reason for being was the manufacturing of nylon shoes for horses.

The Corporations Department, under the Secretary of State's office, is processing an average of 420 new companies per month, Kirkpatrick reported. Among recent additions were four wig manufacturers, along with a host of others.

And, the War on Poverty isn't being overlooked. Since Kirkpatrick took office five and one-half months ago, some 60 economic development corporations have been formed.

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENTS

The General Assembly finally has taken the bull by the horns, after shunting aside the problem for several sessions, and passed legislation to abolish the office of county superintendent of schools where the post is nearly functionless.

Basically, the measure now awaiting action by Governor Hearnes, provides for leaving the office vacant in the two dozen or so counties not now having a superintendent and allowing abolishment in counties having three or less districts.

During the Japanese-Chinese War in 1937, the U.S.S. Mindanao was forced by a blockade to remain anchored in the river off Canton for about six months. The crew standing the deck watches were required to enter the weather conditions during each of their watches in the log. One such entry stated that the sky was clear, with the exception of one cloud directly over the ship. Each entry after that for several months simply repeated the report. What the men didn't know was that the logs were forwarded to Washington.

The captain was startled one day to receive sealed orders from Naval Headquarters. He feverishly tore open the envelope with visions of an important assignment, only to read: "Proceed 500 yards upriver and get out from under that damn cloud." — Ken Lightfoot

Invitations to the wedding of Miss Ann Beck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Beck and Robert H. Mow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Mow, were sent Monday. The marriage will take place Friday afternoon, June 28, in Christ Episcopal Church in Cape Girardeau.

Rainfall here this month has totaled 6.30 inches, according to records kept at the Frisco station by John LaFont.

Seventeen Sikeston Boy Scouts have already tentatively decided to attend the area Scout camp for at least a week when the camping period begins on June 23. They are: Walter Swan of Troop 42; Charles Tanner, Charles Lindley, Jean Klein, Loomis Mayfield, Shad Old, Lee Austin Bowman, Bud Lathom, Foy Collins, Ray Moll, Doyle Heath, Bob Dover, Bill Van Horne, Merlin Taylor, John F. Wood and Marvin Rayburn, all of Troop 41. Besides these Scouts, Gordon Blanton of Troop 42 will stay at the camp four weeks as a junior officer in charge of the store.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Gilooly of Essex are parents of a son born June 10 at the local hospital.

J. C. Runyon, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Runyon, farmers of near Salcedo, was drowned Sunday afternoon when he was caught in undercurrents while playing in Little River drainage ditch near his home.

Five years ago yesterday was a big day in Sikeston — work started on the construction of buildings for the airport that became the home of the Missouri Institute of Aeronautics.

Sikeston folks are waking from their war-time lethargy, and the town is buzzing with present and post-war plans. One of the largest deals of recent days was the purchase by Paul Jones, Jr., of the lot on the corner of Center and Scott streets. Jones plans to build a modern hotel on the site, which he purchased from John Russell. Mrs. Paul Jones, sr., has purchased, also from John Russell, the three stucco houses on North street just back of the post office. They will be maintained as an investment.

Bill Carson is purchasing from Marvin Ralph the Malone avenue building in which his business, the Sikeston Buffet, is located. Chip's Shoe Store occupies the other half of the building. An addition, 30 by 80 feet, is being made to the building on Malone avenue, occupied by the Foster-Matthews Grocery Co.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married three years and my problem is getting worse instead of better.

My husband and I get along fine when there are just the two of us but whenever we are with family or firends I get dizzy spells and my heart begins to pound like a trip hammer. Sometimes my stomach gets tied up in knots and I become nauseated and can't eat.

When I am with these same people and my husband is not present, I enjoy myself and feel just fine. I should tell you that my husband was not born in this country and his ways are a little different. My parents were opposed to our marriage but now they have accepted him. I've told myself that he is doing his best and I am no longer ashamed of the way he speaks.

What is the matter with me? --WEE SALLY

Dear Wee: You are having anxiety symptoms because of your subconscious feelings about your husband. Some people go through life half sick, dizzy, heart pounding, stomach in knots, without realizing that their physical discomfort comes from unrelieved tension.

You need outside help. Go to your family doctor for a complete physical checkup, and ask him to direct you.

Dear Ann Landers: Here is a word of warning to the mother who wanted to know if she should insist that her 17 - year - old daughter go to college.

Don't do it!!!!

My mother forced me to go to college when I was 17 because it was fashionable. I had no interest in college. I wanted to get a job. I knew my mother would never let up until she had her way, so I went.

I flunked out after the first semester and was sent home--disgraced. After several months my mother found another college that would take me. (It wasn't easy after a wash-out.) I flunked a second time and was sent home again.

That failure nearly caused me to have a nervous breakdown. I was sure I was a moron and not fit to live.

It took several weeks before I could get up the nerve to go out and look for work. Fortunately, I landed a perfect job. It gave me satisfaction, dignity and a feeling of personal worth. I've had two promotions in the last year and I'm happier now than I've ever been in my life.

I'm glad you told that ambitious mother college is not for everyone. If a person doesn't want to go he doesn't belong there. --TRUE STORY

Dear Story: You are so right. In your case college was actually damaging. It accentuated your sense of failure and inadequacy. Thanks for sharing.

Dear Ann Landers: Why does a person let his mouth run away with him and say things he shouldn't? Mostly I exaggerate and distort. After I come home from a meeting or a party, or even a back fence visit, I hate myself.

I'm not a vicious person but often I feel an obligation to entertain people. Sometimes, in an attempt to be amusing, I go overboard. Then I become depressed and feel like biting off my tongue. Is there a cure for this?--BLABBERMOUTH

Dear Blab: Make a conscious effort to speak less and to listen more. A moment of silence is a pleasant and welcome sound.

Every man, woman and child has at one time or another said things he wished he hadn't --and has regretted it--so don't feel you are a freak.

If excessive drinking is wrecking your health or destroying someone you love, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help For The Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Americans Are Rolling Up Their Sleeves!

YES, ALL KINDS OF PEOPLE ARE GIVING BLOOD SO THAT OUR WOUNDED MAY LIVE!

● Today, the blood of a Boston bookkeeper may be flowing through the veins of a wounded kid from a Kansas farm . . . the blood of a pretty Southern housewife may have saved the life of a grizzled leatherneck. For, blood is blood, a God-given miracle for which there is no substitute . . . and when a man's life hangs in the balance and blood is needed, there is nothing else to take its place!

Right now the need for blood is urgent. In hospitals—at home and overseas—many men require four and six transfusions during delicate operations. And the blood must be there—when it's needed. So give the most precious gift of all—your blood!

Be assured that giving blood is neither difficult nor distressing. And what a thrill there is in knowing that you've performed a really unselfish act! So call your local American Red Cross today and make an appointment. And tell your friends and neighbors about your experience. Let them share the wonderful feeling Americans get when they roll up their sleeves—and give blood.

Three bills passed by both houses were signed Monday, and will become effective Oct. 13.

One extends from 90 to 180 days the period for which an employer is liable for medical expenses of an injured employe under the workmen's compensation laws.

The third authorizes the adjutant general to transfer part of a tract of land upon which the Rolla Armory is located to the Rolla Chamber of Commerce.

Once the Americans commit units to open combat, it will be an American war. For all practical purposes, the Vietnamese command will have to cede at least some of is control to the foreign ally.

American officers argue that increased American control will improve efficiency and inject a new fighting spirit into the exhausted forces now facing the Viet Cong.

Many Vietnamese argue that an American army in Viet Nam will look too much like a French army and will turn increasing numbers of Vietnamese away from the government and toward the Viet Cong.

They also feel the Vietnamese army will tend to shrug its shoulders and say, "Why get killed now? The outcome depends on what the Americans do, not on us?"

Regarding future joint Vietnamese-American military operations, American officials say, "Details are still being worked out."

"So far his only complaints have been from the school. They asked him not to print any more editorials about the school, and so far he has complied."

Mrs. Lee said Philip's original spellings haven't disturbed his readers, except perhaps his father who is an English teacher at Lakshore High School in College Park.

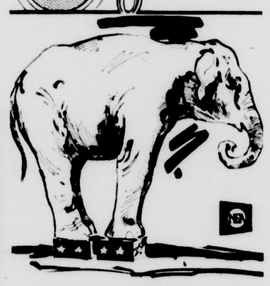
matter of fact



The expression "white elephant" originated when the famous American showman P. T. Barnum procured, at the cost of a small fortune, an albino elephant. But it proved disappointing as an attraction in his circus, expensive to maintain and almost impossible to dispose of. Actually, an albino elephant is not white but a light gray rather than gray or brownish-gray.

Hero Objects To Beatles

LONDON AP -- A Royal Air Force hero mailed his royal decoration - member of the Order of the British Empire -- back to Queen Elizabeth II today because he objects to the Beatles getting the same honor.

Former squadron leader Paul Pearson said he meant no insult to the queen.

"I hope she will realize she has been tricked into making a political award by her ministers," he said.

Pearson, wartime leader of an air-sea rescue squad in the Straits of Dover, accused Prime Minister Harold Wilson of recommending the Beatles for the award as a vote-getting gimmick.

"The award has been cheapened and debased," he said. "Hundreds of thousands of people who served in the war must feel as I do."

Pearson is the second holder of the M.B.E to send his insignia -- a heavy silver cross -- back to the queen in protest at the award to the Beatles.

Hector Dupis, a former member of the Canadian Parliament, mailed his Monday, complaining he had been placed on the same level as "vulgar nincompoops."

The Beatles, one of Britain's big dollar earners, were given the award in the queen's birthday honors list last week. Although made in the name of the queen, the royal honors are awarded on the recommendation of the prime minister.

The Beatles were saying nothing about the controversy.

Two buddies and I still chuckle over the time we were home on leave together; we decided to go to morning service at the church we had all attended. The pastor noticed us, and when the time came for announcements, he asked us to stand. "I think," he said, "we ought to consider these young men who are prepared to go out and give their lives for our country. I want you to take a good look at these young men. They're what stands between us and the enemy! Let us pray." — Francis P. Conner

Early Youth Police Record May Close Door To Jobs

"Too many young people today are woefully unaware of the harm that a police record for a seemingly petty violation can do to their lives."

So writes Judge Jerome M. Lasky in a June Reader's Digest article, "Hijinks That Can Haunt Your Life." Judge Lasky, who as a judge on New York's Nassau County District Court dealt with many offenders from 16 to 19 years of age, warns that however petty an offense may seem at the time, the offender may find many doors closed to him because of his police record.

This could make it impossible to enter a profession where a special license is needed, such as law or real estate brokerage. It could hurt a young man's chances of acceptance into the armed services, or deny him promotion to officer status if he is accepted. Many firms are similarly reluctant to hire young men with records.

Judge Lasky notes that many youngsters get into trouble because they step over the line between high-spirited fun and legal offense. These "innocent offenders" are normally law-abiding citizens whose one misstep often result in long-term punishment, even if the courts set them free. Typical were the three young men who decided to go swimming in the nude. They were arrested by a passing officer and pleaded guilty to indecent exposure. Just a high-spirited impulse, yet they'll have it on their records for life.

The Digest article offers a number of tips for staying out of trouble. Among them are these. 1) Avoid showing disrespect to a police officer, especially if there's a crowd gathered. An act of defiance may force an officer to make an arrest. 2) Don't "stand around" if a gang fight or other riot is taking place. Innocent bystanders are sometimes arrested by policemen who are unable to tell those who are involved from those who are not.

The article is condensed from The Christian Herald.

First Youth Corps At Charleston

CHARLESTON -- The first six-week phase of the Neighborhood Youth Corps work-training program is a success, Dick B. Clough, program director, told the Board of Education recently.

In his report to the board, Mr. Clough said efforts toward re-enrolling school dropouts and increasing future employability of youths in the program were successful. Other phases of the report dealt with increases in school attendance and greater participation in school activities of enrollees.

The final part of Mr. Clough's report stated that enrollees spent about 60 per cent of the money they earned through the program on clothes, 15 per cent on school expenses, 8 per cent on family expenses and the remainder on hospital bills, transportation, college funds and savings.

Mr. Clough said the summer work program of the project, financed with federal funds, will employ 32 boys and four girls in three job classifications; secretarial aides, custodial helpers and maintenance helpers. Pupils will work 25 hours per week during the summer months, with additional time devoted to guidance activities, including interviews and tests.

Several youths between ages 16 and 21 who have left school are participating in the program, Mr. Clough reported.

The Charleston program is operated directly by the U.S. Department of Labor.

Once the Americans commit units to open combat, it will be an American war. For all practical purposes, the Vietnamese command will have to cede at least some of is control to the foreign ally.

American officers argue that increased American control will improve efficiency and inject a new fighting spirit into the exhausted forces now facing the Viet Cong.

Many Vietnamese argue that an American army in Viet Nam will look too much like a French army and will turn increasing numbers of Vietnamese away from the government and toward the Viet Cong.

They also feel the Vietnamese army will tend to shrug its shoulders and say, "Why get killed now? The outcome depends on what the Americans do, not on us?"

Regarding future joint Vietnamese-American military operations, American officials say, "Details are still being worked out."

things he feels very strongly about -- such as not being able to talk in the bathroom at school. He said it was too much like the Nazis (Philip spelled it Notsees).

"So far his only complaints have been from the school. They asked him not to print any more editorials about the school, and so far he has complied."

Mrs. Lee said Philip's original spellings haven't disturbed his readers, except perhaps his father who is an English teacher at Lakshore High School in College Park.

The expression "white elephant" originated when the famous American showman P. T. Barnum procured, at the cost of a small fortune, an albino elephant. But it proved disappointing as an attraction in his circus, expensive to maintain and almost impossible to dispose of. Actually, an albino elephant is not white but a light gray rather than gray or brownish-gray.

Hero Objects To Beatles

LONDON AP -- A Royal Air Force hero mailed his royal decoration - member of the Order of the British Empire -- back to Queen Elizabeth II today because he objects to the Beatles getting the same honor.

Former squadron leader Paul Pearson said he meant no insult to the queen.

"I hope she will realize she has been tricked into making a political award by her ministers," he said.

Pearson, wartime leader of an air-sea rescue squad in the Straits of Dover, accused Prime Minister Harold Wilson of recommending the Beatles for the award as a vote-getting gimmick.

"The award has been cheapened and debased," he said. "Hundreds of thousands of people who served in the war must feel as I do."

Pearson is the second holder of the M.B.E to send his insignia -- a heavy silver cross -- back to the queen in protest at the award to the Beatles.

Hector Dupis, a former member of the Canadian Parliament, mailed his Monday, complaining he had been placed on the same level as "vulgar nincompoops."

The Beatles, one of Britain's big dollar earners, were given the award in the queen's birthday honors list last week. Although made in the name of the queen, the royal honors are awarded on the recommendation of the prime minister.

The Beatles were saying nothing about the controversy.

Two buddies and I still chuckle over the time we were home on leave together; we decided to go to morning service at the church we had all attended. The pastor noticed us, and when the time came for announcements, he asked us to stand. "I think," he said, "we ought to consider these young men who are prepared to go out and give their lives for our country. I want you to take a good look at these young men. They're what stands between us and the enemy! Let us pray." — Francis P. Conner

Early Youth Police Record May Close Door To Jobs

"Too many young people today are woefully unaware of the harm that a police record for a seemingly petty violation can do to their lives."

So writes Judge Jerome M. Lasky in a June Reader's Digest article, "Hijinks That Can Haunt Your Life." Judge Lasky, who as a judge on New York's Nassau County District Court dealt with many offenders from 16 to 19 years of age, warns that however petty an offense may seem at the time, the offender may find many doors closed to him because of his police record.

This could make it impossible to enter a profession where a special license is needed, such as law or real estate brokerage. It could hurt a young man's chances of acceptance into the armed services, or deny him promotion to officer status if he is accepted. Many firms are similarly reluctant to hire young men with records.

Judge Lasky notes that many youngsters get into trouble because they step over the line between high-spirited fun and legal offense. These "innocent offenders" are normally law-abiding citizens whose one misstep often result in long-term punishment, even if the courts set them free. Typical were the three young men who decided to go swimming in the nude. They were arrested by a passing officer and pleaded guilty to indecent exposure. Just a high-spirited impulse, yet they'll have it on their records for life.

The Digest article offers a number of tips for staying out of trouble. Among them are these. 1) Avoid showing disrespect to a police officer, especially if there's a crowd gathered. An act of defiance may force an officer to make an arrest. 2) Don't "stand around" if a gang fight or other riot is taking place. Innocent bystanders are sometimes arrested by policemen who are unable to tell those who are involved from those who are not.

The article is condensed from The Christian Herald.

First Youth Corps At Charleston

CHARLESTON -- The first six-week phase of the Neighborhood Youth Corps work-training program is a success, Dick B. Clough, program director, told the Board of Education recently.

In his report to the board, Mr. Clough said efforts toward re-enrolling school dropouts and increasing future employability of youths in the program were successful. Other phases of the report dealt with increases in school attendance and greater participation in school activities of enrollees.

The final part of Mr. Clough's report stated that enrollees spent about 60 per cent of the money they earned through the program on clothes, 15 per cent on school expenses, 8 per cent on family expenses and the remainder on hospital bills, transportation, college funds and savings.

Mr. Clough said the summer work program of the project, financed with federal funds, will employ 32 boys and four girls in three job classifications; secretarial aides, custodial helpers and maintenance helpers. Pupils will work 25 hours per week during the summer months, with additional time devoted to guidance activities, including interviews and tests.

Several youths between ages 16 and 21 who have left school are participating in the program, Mr. Clough reported.

The Charleston program is operated directly by the U.S. Department of Labor.
